Goodbye, Cold World.
The Canyon Sees Einstein.
Important Baby.
6 Black Men Die.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.

IF SUCH emotions as surprise and anger are known in Heaven, the late Joseph Pulitzer experiences both as he sees today's news on the bulletin board.

The New York World, morning, evening and Sunday, has been sold. What Pulitzer believed impossible and tried in his will to prevent has happened.

The paper that once dominated New York is sold because it had decayed and could not be made to pay in recent years. Pulitzer left his children rich, and it is hard to succeed in spite of wealth.

DR. EINSTEIN, returning to Germany from the Pacific Coast, will stop and let the Grand Canyon of the Colorado see him. How will his mathematical mind operate when he looks a mile down to the bottom of the canyon and sees a tiny stream of water rushing back to the sea from the high mountains? Will the professor dwell mentally on the fact that the water as it goes from the heights to the lowlands carries power, fertility and human happiness with it?

OR WILL he compare the canyon, only a mile deep, to the vast spaces in one of the "island universes" 50 or 100 million light years distant?

Everything is comparative.

Compared to a dishpan, the Grand Canyon is impressive. Compared with one of the dark spots in the milky way, it is less than a dishpan.

THE EMPRESS of Japan is expecting the arrival of one more little Japanese to be added to the Mikado's 90 million subjects, and nothing is more important than this birth to those 90 millions.

The Mikado, Hirohito, has three daughters, no son, and only a son can rule in Japan.

If a son is born, he will be hailed as the direct descendant of the Sun Goddess and will be, when his father dies, the one hundred and twenty-fifth mikado in a straight line.

THAT ANCESTRY makes every other earthly lineage seem trivial. Voltaire said that the oldest title of nobility in Europe descended from a Venetian nobleman. And Venice, founded by malefactors, fleeing from the mainland, is young compared to the Mikado's line. Allowing only 30 years to each of the imperial Japanese generations, the 125 Mikados would go back 3,750 years, back of Rome, Greece, Jerusalem, everything that we call "civilization."

YESTERDAY IN the South Carolina State Prison, six Negroes were put to death for killing two white men. When awakened at 4 o'clock in the morning all had slept soundly. Lack of imagination which makes murder possible, also brings sound sleep. Four had been baptised in honor of the occasion and went first to the electric chair. The death marches lasted two hours.

Whither, in this universe of vastness and relativity, have those six black men gone? Are they again sleeping soundly or enduring torments that will never end?

THE VARSITY, newspaper published by the students of Toronto University, says undergraduates are "practical atheists." Toronto is much excited. The excitement is unnecessary.

Students are, mentally speaking, half-baked products, attaching unnecessary importance to what they would describe as their own ideas.

FRANCIS BACON covered the case of the young student atheist in few words:

"A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion."

SWIFT PASSAGE of the bonus over the President's veto emphasizes the fact that in union there is strength and should interest farmers and others.

Apart from the merit of the bonus, and the desirability of giving money to men entitled to it, you observe that the organizations of veterans working together did what any number of men, no matter how deserving could not have accomplished working separately

THERE WERE veterans on the steps of the Capitol, in the galleries, thousands upon thousands writing and telegraphing to Congressmen. No doubt was left in the congressional mind that failure to vote the right way would cost votes. So the Congressmen voted the right way.

Some day, perhaps, 25,000,000 Americans that own automobiles will unite to protect their interests, including the desirability of exemption from erratic and excessive taxation.

AS SOON as the bonus bill becomes law, the government will pay out about four hundred million dollars and there is talk about "draining the treasury, increasing taxes, injuring business." None of that need happen. The government can sell 3 per cent bonds to run 40 or 50 years at a premium, which would be more sensible than trying to pay them off at once

IT WOULD be interesting to follow the first four hundred millions thus paid out. Among the many service men one here and there will build on the money that he receives, future independence. A majority un-

STATE BANK HEAD GIVES UP POST

'Not in Full Accord' With Governor, He Explains; Follows Assistant Out

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.) — Peter G. Cameron, secretary of the Department of Banking, resigned today.

The reports that Cameron would quit began to be circulated about the time that his first deputy, James A. Taylor, was discharged and Dr. William Gordon, of Drexel Park, was appointed by Gov. Pinchot.

In resigning, Secretary Cameron issued the following statement:

Mr. Cameron

"After nearly 25 years of devoted service to the state as bank examiner, deputy and secretary of banking, I have today resigned the latter office. I have taken this step after mature reflection and only for the reason that the present administration and I are not in full accord with regard to department policy."

Cameron's resignation marks the third major departure from the department in the last few weeks. Soon after Pinchot was inaugurated he announced the dismissal of Taylor as first deputy and the appointment of Dr. Gordon to succeed him. A short time later Walter E. Burns, Harrisburg, resigned as second deputy to accept a position with a Carlisle bank. E. J. Sitgreaves, third deputy, formerly of Easton, and now of Harrisburg, is the only one remaining of the four major officers of the department who served during the Fisher administration.

THIEF SLAIN BY BUTCHER ON HILL

Merchant Hurls Knife as Trapped Robber Makes Motion to Throw Cleaver

Trapped in a meat market where, police said, he had spent several hours in robbing the place, Robert Coleman, 30, a Negro, paid with his life at 6 a. m. today when he attempted to hack his way to freedom with a meat cleaver.

Benjamin Schwartz, 36, of 2117 Bedford avenue, manager of the Hi-Grade Meat Market, 1216 Wylie avenue, described the killing to police he had summoned after the intruder collapsed in front of the shop, a knife thrown by the butcher piercing his heart.

INTRUDER MAKES THREATS

He said:

"When I entered the shop at 6 a. m. I saw a man lying behind a counter. Before I could call to him, he got up, grabbed a cleaver and told me to let him out. I told him I was going to turn him over to the police, and began calling for help. He advanced toward men, raised the cleaver and said if I didn't let him out he'd cripple me.

"I kept on calling, and when he made a move to throw the cleaver, I grabbed a large knife from a chopping block and threw it at him.

"It struck him in the chest. He ran past me, out into the street, and fell in a heap."

BUTCHER'S STORY ACCEPTED

Lieut. M. M. Murphy and a squad from Center Avenue Police Station found Coleman lying on the sidewalk and sent him to Passavant Hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Schwartz was taken to the police station and questioned. Police said they believed his story.

A short time later police discovered a side window to the market broken open and learned a man had been making frequent trips, carrying a bag between the market and a house at 1222 Wylie avenue, a few doors away. In a room on the second floor they reported finding 24 hams and five sides of bacon, believed stolen from the market.

Schwartz was ordered turned over to the coroner by Magistrate Leon Rothenberg at Center Avenue Police Station today.

Five Negroes arrested when police raided 1222 Wylie avenue, where stolen hams were alleged to have been found, were taken in charge by the homicide squad.

WAR VETERANS AT U. S. VETERANS BUREAU, 5118 PENN AVENUE, MAKING APPLICATIONS FOR GOVERNMENT BONUS LOANS

Veterans' Rush For Bonus Loans

EX-SOLDIERS FORM LINE AT BUREAU FOR AID

Some Out at 6:30 A. M.; Regional Manager Forced To Employ Extra Clerks

Three hundred and fifty World War veterans were waiting in line when the United States Veterans Bureau, 5118 Penn avenue, opened today, to file applications for loans up to 50 per cent of their adjusted compensation certificates.

Such loans were authorized in a bill passed by Congress over the President's veto.

CROWD GROWS

Ten men were waiting at 6:30 a. m. for the janitor to open the building. Half an hour later, H. C. Kincaid, a medical examiner, admitted 22 men into the veterans' quarters. Soon after the crowd grew rapidly, the line extending through the rear of the building to a nearby street.

Extra girl clerks were at desks, along with notaries, to receive the sworn statements. M. J. Shortley, regional manager of the Veterans' Bureau, said 18 additional clerks would be engaged to take care of the rush. They will work nights.

Some of the veterans admitted they were in dire need of funds. One, the father of four children, said he had no work since September and had borrowed up to 22½ per cent of the face value of his certificate, the extent previously allowed.

LEGION ASSISTS

J. B. Nicklas, Jr., Allegheny County commander, American Legion, asked what steps the Legion was taking to help the veterans, said:

"We have a legal aid committee to assist in any legal points that may arise as well as a service committee. I suggest that the secretary of each local post arrange to collect the applications for loans and turn these over to the Veterans' Bureau."

Veterans are expected to receive checks in about two weeks

FREES 'NUMBER' SUSPECTS

Declaring their arrest illegal, Magistrate Raymond E. Schneider today discharged two alleged "numbers" writers in North Side Police Court after the arresting officer admitted a search warrant had not been procured in connection with the arrest.

Raiding the home of George Dorn, 41, alias B. A. Matson, 1612 Sedgewick street, on complaint of neighbors yesterday, police say, an adding machine, typewriter, "numbers" pads and other lottery equipment were seized.

R. M. Jackson, 31, of 1922 Brighton road, also was arrested.

Women to Press Action For Council Probe In City Food Deals

A delegation from the Allegheny County League of Women Voters will appear before City Council Monday afternoon in suport of the communication asking for a complete public investigation of food contracts made over the last six years.

The letter, addressed to John S. Herron, president of Council, was approved yesterday by more than 1,200 women at a meeting of the Friday Morning Club in Carnegie Music Hall. It was the largest attendance in the history of the club.

The statement of the league expresses appreciation for the stand taken by John D. Houston, who asked the questions which started the food investigation. It also says there is "a tendency for certain public servants to become not only flippant but insolent when a citizen asks for the redress of a grievance."

LEADERS SCAN RECORDS

The delegation of women appearing before Council will be headed by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the league, and Mrs. J. O. Miller, a leader in the same organization. Both visited the office of the city controller yesterday to scan the records for other possible irregulari-

Film Players Flee as Police Raid Boyd's Residence

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—William H. Boyd, 45, stage and film actor, was charged with possession of gambling paraphernalia and liquor after a police raid, which broke up a party at his home early today. Walter L. Catlett, 42, and Pat O'Brien, 31, were arrested on intoxication charges.

Men and women in evening dress, many of them said to be film players, fled through doors and windows as six policemen burst in upon what they described as a "well-equipped gambling room and a richly-furnished bar."

Police said roulette wheels and dice tables and "more than a gallon" of liquor were seized.

Boyd formerly played on the New York stage, but has appeared in several motion pictures in the past two years. One of his most recent film parts was in "The Spoilers."

He and his wife, Dora Boyd, New York actress, were divorced recently.

LILA ACQUITTED OF SLAYING

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 28.—(AP.) — Lila Jimerson, Cayuga Indian woman twice tried for the murder last March of Mrs. Clotilde Marchand, was acquitted today by a Supreme Court jury.

The jury brought in its verdict at 10:07 a. m., after having been locked up overnight since 4:50 p. m. yesterday.

The trial began February 16.

The state contended that the woman, once known as "Red Lilac" of the Cayuga Indians, had instigated the murder of Mrs. Marchand so she could carry on her admitted friendship with Henri Marchand, artist and husband of the murdered woman.

The defense introduced testimony to prove that Lila had no knowledge of the crime either before or after its commission, and that others had motives at least equally strong for desiring the death of Mrs. Marchand.

Tip to Dunkers And Crumblers--Use a Sponge

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Don't know whether March will come in like a lion tomorrow or whether it will be on a vegetable diet.

We are more interested in the controversy raging among Georgia dieticians on the technique of the cornpone.

This argument has been going on so long we thought they meant Al Cornpone at first.

Georgia cornponists have divided themselves into two schools. The crumblers and the dunkers.

The famous Duncan sisters of the stage are far outnumbered by the dunking brothers, of Georgia.

Sun-Telegraph Will Aid Vets Applying for Loans

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph desires to give every possible assistance to veterans of the World War in applying for loans under the act of Congress passed yesterday, as it aided many thousands of them in making application for their adjusted compensation certificates.

M. J. Shortley, regional manager of the Veterans' Bureau, urges that veterans not having pressing need of the money delay their applications for a few days to give first chance to those whose needs are urgent.

The veteran who has not borrowed on his certificate must fill out his note to the government and deposit his certificate with the Veterans' Bureau as security for the loan. He must make affidavit that he is the veteran named in the certificate. If he has borrowed previously, he has only to fill in the new note and file it with the regional Veterans' Bureau.

Veterans may obtain the necessary blank at the following places: U. S. Veterans' Bureau, 5118 Penn avenue; American Legion posts, and the county adjutant's office, Fulton Building.

DECKS CLEARED, CONGRESS READY FOR ADJOURNMENT

FEW MINOR BILLS WAIT ACTION

Hoover's Muscle Shoals Veto Expected; Fund Measures For 4 Billions Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Congressional leaders claimed to have broken all records today with the calendar cleared of major business four days before adjournment.

With legislation of the short session all but completed, the weary legislators turned to finishing the odds and ends for adjournment at noon Wednesday.

A veto by President Hoover of the measure providing for government operation of the Muscle Shoals power plant is awaited on Capitol Hill, but leaders do not see enough votes in sight to enact this over the presidential disapproval.

The route for passage of the appropriation measures carrying $4,000,000,000 for next year's operation of the government ended suddenly yesterday with approval of a conference report adjusting differences on the naval supply bill.

ANXIOUS TO AVOID "EXTRA"

So anxious were the congressional chieftains to obtain passage of these bills to avoid an extra session this spring that they surpassed all previous legislative performances.

The second deficiency bill providing about $100,000,000 to meet emergency legislation expenditures still is in conference, but its passage early next week is expected.

Also the constitutional amendment fixing a new meeting time for Congress is awaited as a conference deadline between the Senate and House. Leaders were doubtful today in ironing out this dispute, which revolves about the House provision limiting the second session of Congress to four months.

VET HOSPITAL BILLS UP

Legislation for new veterans' hospitals and for continuing the maternity-aid law also was in conference.

The Senate turned to work on the Vestal copyright bill passed early in the session by the House. The latter also had routine affairs to consider.

Senators Watson, of Indiana, and McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leaders upon whom fell the burden of steering legislation through the strife-torn Senate, smiled today and reported an orderly adjournment in prospect.

Republican leaders in the Senate won Democratic co-operation on expediting business after a compromise was reached in the bitter dispute over drought relief.

The protocol for American adherence to the League Court still lies unacted upon, but the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has laid it aside until next December.

after filing applications, it was said.

The local bureau, according to Shortley, had paid out more than $6,000,000 to 28,000 veterans since January under the 22½ per cent basis.

Administration Acts to Give Needy Vets Funds First

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The veterans' administration was moving today to meet soldiers' demands for loans on their adjusted compensation certificates up to 50 per cent of their face value, while an appeal was made by Veterans' Bureau and veterans' organizations that only those actually in need apply at present. The Senate joined the House in overriding the executive veto 76 to 17.

World War veterans not in actual distress were urged by Col. George Ijams, director of the Veterans' Bureau, to withhold applications so action on the others could be speeded. Ijams was seconded by officials of the various veterans' organizations.

The first check under the new law already is in the mails and will be delivered to a destitute veteran in Baltimore.

Because the overriding of the veto was anticipated, preparations were made days ago to expedite payment.

President Hoover declared he had issued instructions to Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, to give priority to the applications from the needy.

Mr. Hoover made an especial appeal to local relief committees to continue their service to the veterans, saying:

"The recent survey of the larger cities shows, in the opinion of the administrator of veterans' affairs, that about 6 per cent of the total number of veterans in industrial centers are now receiving support from the local unemployment and other relief committees. This will release some of the burden being carried by the communities, but as the amount possible for many veterans to borrow under the bill is so small, it is urgently necessary that the local committees shall continue their service to the veterans."

Under the arrangements for handling applications, veterans should receive checks within 10 or 15 days after applications have been received.

WABASH BRIDGE SALE APPROVED

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong, of the board of County Commissioners, announced yesterday that the board of directors of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad Company has approved the sale to the county of the Wabash bridge and tunnel.

Some time ago, Commissioner E. V. Babcock asked his colleagues to consider purchase of the bridge and tunnel as a traffic artery to the South Hills. Later, H. W. Nethken, chief engineer for the railroad company, offered the county the bridge and tunnel for $3,000,000.

Since then Commissioner McGovern has said he voted for the proposal "under a misapprehension" if a report were true that the county would acquire only a 60-foot right-of-way from the south shore line of the Monongahela River to the Wabash passenger station. McGovern said he was under the impression when he voted that the county was to get property bounded by Water street, Ferry street, Fourth avenue and Redoubt way.

BANDIT MURDER SUSPECTS HELD

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Three young men suspected by state police of being the bandits who held up a barbecue stand near Irwin yesterday and killed the proprietor, were held here following their arrest at Aliquippa.

Those being held gave their names as Charles R. Kay, 27; David Krajac, 26, and George Whiteman, 26, all of McKeesport. They denied knowledge of the affair. Police said the trio fitted the description of the bandits, one of whom shot Frank J. McGreevy, 38, as he stood with arms upraised, submitting to search.

Witnesses of the slaying will be brought to state barracks here today for possible identification of the suspects.

When taken into custody at Aliquippa, the three were driving a car with an Ohio license. State police said it was not the one used during the holdup, but they believe the suspects had the machine in waiting and abandoned the other car to foil pursuers.

Shriners Hear Arrangements For Polar Expedition to Be Made in Submarine

Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins, famed explorer of Arctic and Antarctic regions, told nearly 1,000 Shriners in the William Penn Hotel last night, of "Flying the Ends of the Earth."

It was a story of heart-breaking, gradually progressing labor to fulfill a boyhood dream—a dream of predicting the seasons and their weather.

The occasion was a banquet in honor of Thomas M. Heard, Jr., newly-elected illustrious potentate of Syria Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

TO RADIO STORIES

Sir Hubert told of his projected submarine expedition to the North Pole. On his way he will write and broadcast stories exclusively to the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers. He said:

"As long ago as 1640, I find, an ancestor of mine predicted a trip by submarine to the North Pole. Where you can't go over the ice, this man predicted, you can go under it. I had a thrill I cannot describe when I discovered this.

"Without leaving the vessel, we can make the necessary observations. We can stay beneath the surface for extended periods, can come to the top for air when we need it. We believe we'll find cracks in the ice through which we can rise to air. If we don't however, we shall have with us three drills, two 60 feet long and one 30 feet long, with which we can pierce the ice and through which we can reach the air. Through the shortest of the three a man can rise to the surface."

TELLS OF EXPEDITION

The speaker told of expeditions and experiences made possible through the co-operation of Hearst Enterprises, of the United States and foreign governments.

It was when he was a youth in Australia, he said, as he saw farm stock and crops die from drought and heat and flood and cold, that he began thinking of controlling or predicting the seasons.

Sir Hubert will start on his submarine trip in June, he says, under the auspices of the Hearst newspapers and the International Meteorological Society. The Sun-Telegraph will carry daily accounts of his adventures beneath the northern ices.

Sir Humbert broadcast over KDKA at 10:45 last night. He outlined plans for the proposed trip to the pole. He was introduced by Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology.

SUBMARINE DESCRIBED

MRS. PROPHET AWAITS FATE

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, charged with murder in the first degree for killing her husband, William F. Prophet, today awaited the verdict of the jury of 12 men which may send her to the electric chair. The jury was given the case late yesterday.

For the second time during the trial, Mrs. Prophet collapsed yesterday when District Attorney Charles F. Kelley demanded the death penalty. With a groan she rolled out of her chair and slid under the counsel table. Her mother, Mrs. Clara Simmington, arose and cried:

"I hope somebody sends Mr. Kelley to his death, if he sends my children to theirs."

Mrs. Simmington's son, Harold E. Williams, was convicted two weeks ago of murder in the first degree, with the penalty of death, for the actual slaying of Prophet. In Mrs. Prophet's trial the state presented the confession she made to police shortly after her husband was found beaten and shot to death last November. She gave as the motive her desire to be rid of her husband. The confession said her brother agreed to kill Prophet for $500 of his $3,000 life insurance.

fortunately will spend the money and be no better off.

NEEDLESS TO say, President Hoover's veto of the bonus bill required political courage, or rather the courage to put conviction ahead of expediency.

The President's veto expresses the fear that the bill would "tend to break down national self-reliance."

But during the war many money-making concerns, including one city railroad system, managed to get millions from the government and that did not seem to break down their "self-reliance."

ties in food buying. Mrs. Miller said:

"The women of the league intend to press the case before Council to the limit of our ability. Just what we can do if the majority in Council refuses to investigate, I don't know."

The letter of the League to Council points out that both the Mayor and the director of the Department of Supplies are involved, and states that it would seem both impossible and absurd for the Mayor to investigate himself as the executive head of the city. It says that should the present state of things continue Council becomes a party to the misuse of funds.

The women suggest that a firm of expert accountants be allowed to examine the records of food purchases to reveal whatever losses have occurred. The League is prepared to recommend such a firm.

AL CAPONE'S GANG RULE TOTTERING

6-Month Jail Term Believed Beginning of End of His Reign as Underworld King

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—A beginning of the end of the power in Chicago of "Scarface Al" Capone was seen today by federal officials, they said, in the six months jail sentence imposed upon him in Federal Court.

Toppled suddenly from his throne of apparent immunity by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who found him guilty of contempt of court for his attempt to delay his appearance before a grand jury in 1929, Capone was pictured by government officers as losing ground because his reputation for immunity from punishment here appeared ended.

Capone found his trouble steadily increasing today as the federal grand jury delved deeper into his income tax affairs. Word came from the federal grand jury that two witnesses had testified as a preliminary to prosecution of the gang czar for violation of the income tax law. The government has been preparing the income tax case for two years.

FIGHTS SENTENCE

Capone, although apparently stunned by the length of his sentence, was in a fighting mood today, his hope pinned in a 30-day stay of execution and an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals. Meanwhile he was free under a $5,000 bond, which will have to be renewed in Federal Court Monday.

Having failed to convince Judge Wilkerson of the truth of his story that he was too ill to come up from his Florida home in the winter of 1929 to appear before the grand jury investigating incomes, Capone, long known as the "big fellow" of the gangster business, faced not only the fight on the appeal, but an appearance in Criminal Court next Wednesday for vagrancy. Harry Ditchburne, assistant state's attorney, said:

"I shall be glad to try Capone for vagrancy. He has had no legitimate occupation for years."

HYMIE ORDERED TO STAND TRIAL

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—"Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, admitted rum runner of Pittsburgh, today entered a plea of not guilty when arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon on charges of first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of William E. Potter, former city councilman. The trial was set for March 23. A special venire of 75 persons was ordered summoned for jury duty.

Martin is not eligible to be released on bond, and will be held in Cuyahoga County jail until the trial.

Sheriff John M. Sulzmann and County Detective John E. Toner were absent today on a mysterious mission reported to be a search for Mrs. Mary Outland Woodfield, a friend of Martin, who has been hunted for questioning.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A judgment for $5,500 against Belle Livingstone, night club hostess until she was sentenced to 30 days in jail as a result of a liquor law violation, was granted the estate of Clare Briggs, newspaper cartoonist.

Henry A. Thelusson, temporary administrator of the estate, charged Miss Livingstone had given Briggs a bad check for $2,000 in 1928 and the estate had been unable to collect on a note for $3,300 given the cartoonist by Miss Livingstone in 1928.

Coolidge Sees Strong Peace Sentiment Abroad

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 28.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

In addition to the apparent escape of the Spanish people from the ravages of disorder and revolution, the encouraging news comes from Europe that there is a good prospect of a naval agreement between France and Italy.

Calvin Coolidge

Nothing could be more reassuring to the real friends of Europe in this country than concrete actions demonstrating that the desire for peace through mutual good understandings and concessions is the predominant sentiment of the continental people.

It is seldom that even an event of great importance can bring on war between nations, unless the way has been prepared by a long series of disagreements over comparatively trifling incidents. If the little disputes are adjusted as they arise, a general condition of friendship exists between people of different countries so that they are immune from the contagion of the serious maladies of hostility.

These recent developments indicate clearly that in spite of some friction and some intemperate language the people of Europe have a strong underlying public opinion in favor of peaceable adjustment. That sentiment will produce more security than great squadrons and heavy battalions. Common sense is saving the day.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Calls Mellon Trade Genius With Artist's Mien

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—"Universal" President Wilson would have become a national hero had he been assassinated before leaving Paris, according to Calvin Coolidge.

Ludwig has just published a semi-autobiographical book called "The Gift of Life."

The historian tells of a visit to Mr. Coolidge, during which he asked the former president if he thought Lincoln would have been so glorified in America had he not been assassinated. Mr. Coolidge replied:

"Hard to say. I hardly think so. Imagine if Woodrow Wilson had been murdered just before leaving Paris on November 18. Wouldn't he have become a national hero?"

Ludwig has filled his book with comments on America's public men. Some of them:

"Secretary Mellon, who looks like a chess player and whose melancholy eyes reveal cynical skepticism. But his nose, which resembles the beak of an eagle, shows his energy, which made him one of the world's wealthiest men, but otherwise he looks and speaks like an artist.

"Senator Borah looks just like Beethoven, which is one of the reasons why one must love him. He is just as solemn and silent as Beethoven was, and is the same sort of lonely idealist."

THEFT SEEN IN GORDON MYSTERY

Letter Discovered in Park Hints Woman Was Killed For 'Talking Too Much'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—As the third day's investigation of the murder of Vivian Gordon opened today, police admitted they had been unable to make any progress toward a solution of the crime.

Whether she was slain because she "knew too much" and had offered to testify before the Seabury vice investigation, or was killed in a blackmail plot or was the victim of robbers, remained a matter of conjecture.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney said the woman, found strangled to death in a city park, might have been killed by thieves. A $2,500 ring, a valuable watch and other jewelry of Mrs. Gordon was believed missing, he said.

LETTER GIVES CLUE

A letter made public by District Attorney Charles McLaughlin was published today by the New York American.

The letter indicated Miss Gordon was slain because she "talked too much."

Addressed to Mrs. Venida Bischoff, her legal name, the letter was found in Van Cortland Park, near where her body was discovered. It said:

"Get this, dame:

"If you don't keep your mouth shut you won't have to. There are ways of fixing people who talk too much. This is the only warning we're going to give you.

"You know who—"

"M."

2 HELD AS WITNESSES

A lawyer and his client, questioned in the case, were held in bail of $50,000 each as material witnesses. John Radenoff, who had been the woman's attorney, and his client, Samuel Cohen or Samuel Harris, said they knew nothing concerning Mrs. Gordon's death.

Andrew H. McLaughlin, a vice squad patrolman believed to have been the officer who arrested Mrs. Gordon in 1923 on an immorality charge, was to be questioned tomorrow on his return from a vacation in Bermuda.

LOW BIDDER AWAITING CONTRACT

Booth & Flinn Company Set To Start Immediately If U. S. Gives Them Job

Ground will be broken within 30 days for excavation and construction of the foundations for the proposed federal building and postoffice here if Booth & Flinn, the low bidders, are awarded the contract, George Hockensmith, vice president of the firm, announced today.

The government has a month in which to let the contract after bids have been opened, Hockensmith said.

"We will begin the job the day after the government signs a contract with us. It is our plan to push the job to an early completion. We expect to finish the foundations within six months. About 200 men will be employed, working three eight-hour shifts."

The Booth & Flinn Company was one of eight Pittsburgh concerns which submitted bids for the work. Fifteen bids were submitted in all. The second lowest bid was that of the Rust Engineering Company, of Pittsburgh, at $597,680. The low bid of Booth & Flinn was $554,961. The Navarro Company, of Pittsburgh, was highest of the 15, its bid being $839,500.

The other Pittsburgh concerns and their bids were: W. F. Trimble & Sons, $810,000; Walter S. Rae, $697,000; Mellon-Stuart Company, $799,000; Michael H. Parish, Inc., $706,927, and the S. M. Siesel Company, $749,000.

The postal officials are anxious to have the work get under way and for the next week or 10 days will be busy examining the company's financial responsibilities before letting the contract. During the time the foundation work is in progress, the Treasury Department will complete its plans for the superstructure so that this work may commence without delay.

People Can Help Check Dope Evil by Exposing Medical Peddlers

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—Well, now that we've won two important battles in the war on dope—what next?

There are just four plain, practical things to do, if we want to drive the danger of dope out of our very door yards—we Americans.

1—Watch that London narcotic convention, and while we watch let us insist that our delegates to that convention stand firm in the determination to keep the world production of narcotics down to the limits of world need and by that we mean the honest need of honest physicians, the honest hospital and honest, and competent dentists, who have humane reasons for the use of narcotics in the kindly stilling of human agony.

2—Let us make and enforce laws which will deport immediately any foreigner caught selling dope illegally anywhere, anytime, for any price, in the United States of America.

Let us make and enforce laws deporting foreigners who can be proven to be confirmed drug slaves.

SMALL FINES HIT

3—Let's work to make the judges of this country from one end to the other realize what they are doing to the innocent youth of the country when they give dope peddlers short sentences and small fines, that mean less than nothing to a man who makes his living on the ruin and degradation of human souls.

4—Let us mere laymen stand behind the American Medical Association and urge that association to take away the license of any physician who makes a practice of selling dope prescriptions just for the money he can make out of it.

Let's resolve this very day to stand courageously behind the organized physicians of America, in the fight they are undoubtedly only too willing and too anxious to make.

If you know of a doctor who sells dope prescriptions to any one who has the money to buy them send that doctor's name in to the state medical association and let the association do the investigating—and the punishing.

If nobody acts on your information go to the ordinary police and turn the whole wretched business into the hands of an officer in a police uniform.

NO PRIVILEGED CLASS

When it comes to drug addiction, and the people who help and encourage it, there should be no privileged class.

Limitation of the production of narcotic drugs.

Deportation of all foreign dope peddlers and dope dealers of any sort.

Sentences that mean real prison terms, and real fines, that really amount to something in the case of all dope dealers, dope smugglers, and confirmed dope users.

TERRIBLE DREAMS HAUNTED ALMA IN SOLITARY CELL

FOUGHT NURSE WHO JEERED AT THREAT

Made Wild by Craving for Drug, Star Determined to Escape Luxurious Hospital

By ALMA RUBENS

CHAPTER XXVI.

Solitary confinement — so they call it.

But it was not solitary for me—at first.

The little, narrow, dark cell, with its heavy door and barred window was full of ghosts. Oh, I had fine company down there in the solitary cell.

The woman they carried out of the prison cell just before they took me into it—she was there. She crouched in the corner of the cell, and mowed and moped at me till I covered my eyes to keep from seeing her.

But the minute I opened them again there she was bowing and courtesying to me with a kind of ironical politeness that was more terrifying than any threat.

Miss Rubens

The doctor who had tied me to the medicine cabinet and started to trample me to the floor—he was there too, grinning in triumph to think that he had me there at his mercy, alone and helpless.

And sometimes my poor tortured soul escaped from the solitary cell, and I was a little girl again running away from school to play in the old graveyard, shut away by crumbling walls in the very heart of San Francisco.

My little school chum and I were again together, reading the inscriptions on the headstones, and making up stories about the people who lay buried there.

Girlhood Chum

There was one little girl I remember Alice May. She was just the age of my chum and me, and we made up stories about her, and wondered how she looked, and why she died so young, and if she was sorry to die, or if she was glad to go and get rid of the arithmetic examinations.

We used to pick wild poppies and lupin, and lay them on the grave of Alice May—my little chum and I.

In my vague delirium I could feel again the dew on the deep grass, in the old burying ground. And hear again the little brown phoebe bird that called from the branches of the cypress tree that sighed over the grave of little Alice May, who would never again have to stand a test in arithmetic, or stay after school to learn the list of the Presidents of the United States.

And one dreadful night there she was standing in my cell, a little girl with her hair braided and tied with a great bow of blue ribbon. She stood at the foot of my narrow cot and smiled at me.

I sat up and stared at her. "Who are you?" I said. "What are you doing here?"

Then she smiled and I knew all at once that it was Alice May come to thank me for the yellow poppies and the blue lupin my little chum and I had put on the grave in the old burying ground, when I was little and innocent and kind, and had never heard of "dope," or the misery it brings, in all my life.

Broken Woman

But when Alice May vanished I came suddenly to myself and realized that I was not a little girl anymore. I was a broken-hearted, broken-bodied, woman, wracked with agonizing pain.

Tortured with burning thirst, a ching in every muscle of my body.

"I cannot bear this another minute," a muttered. "I will not bear it." And I screamed and tore my hair.

When the nurses came I told them I had a fearful toothache and could not bear it another minute, unless I went to a dentist, and had the tooth out.

I held my breath and clutched my hands together to keep from laughing with joy when they told me they would take me to the dentist.

That was all I wanted.

Once out of my cell and out of the institution for one hour, and I would manage some way to escape, and get a little of the only thing that could ease for one instant the torture of my pain—dope.

Sure enough, they took me to the city. There I made an excuse and went into a drug store and bought a bottle of a certain patent medicine.

A patient at Spadra told me it was as good as a bottle of whisky.

At the dentist office, I went into the ladies' room and drank every drop of that "medicine."

Then I didn't care if they tear her to pieces. In an instant another nurse and two men were in the room, they overpowered me and I was helpless—again.

(To Be Continued.)

ALMA RUBENS

pulled every tooth in my head. They did pull one tooth—I screamed like a mad woman, as indeed I was, and the nurses carried me downstairs, put me in a motor car and took me to the hospital.

There they gave me something that made me sleep. Do you realize what sleep is, you to whom it comes as a matter of course, after a day of wholesome work and exercise?

To me sleep was like a lovely bath of warm and perfumed milk—down, down, down. I slipped into the white fragrant soothing liquid, and all my misery dropped from me like a tattered cloak.

Dreams of Madness

When I awoke I thought I had gone mad again.

I was in a beautiful cottage, so near the sea that I could hear the water kissing the sand, and the room where I lay was sweet with the breath of flowers.

My benefactor, the influential man who had obtained permission for me to be treated at Spadra, had heard of my plight, and had come to the recue again.

But all to no avail.

I was too far gone to respond to kindness.

I went from bad to worse, and finally in desperation they put me into a strait-jacket, and took me to a private sylum—one of the finest sanitariums in California, where the unfortunates whose money can not save them from madness are sent.

I was in a beautiful suite of rooms with my two nurses, three rooms all for myself, beautifully furnished with every comfort money could buy.

No wonder.

My kind benefactor was paying $1,000 a week for that suite.

But it was all to no use.

My demons would not let me rest, I might as well have been shut up in the barred cell—the fiend followed me into my luxurious rooms just the same.

If I could have just one whiff of coke, only one, just to steady me, just to stop the horrible quivering! But there was no help for me.

I must escape.

"I'll get away from you," I said to the nurse.

The nurse was a tall woman with nerves and muscles of iron.

She did a strange thing when I said that.

She made a face and stuck out her tongue at me—in derision.

I sprang at her and tried to

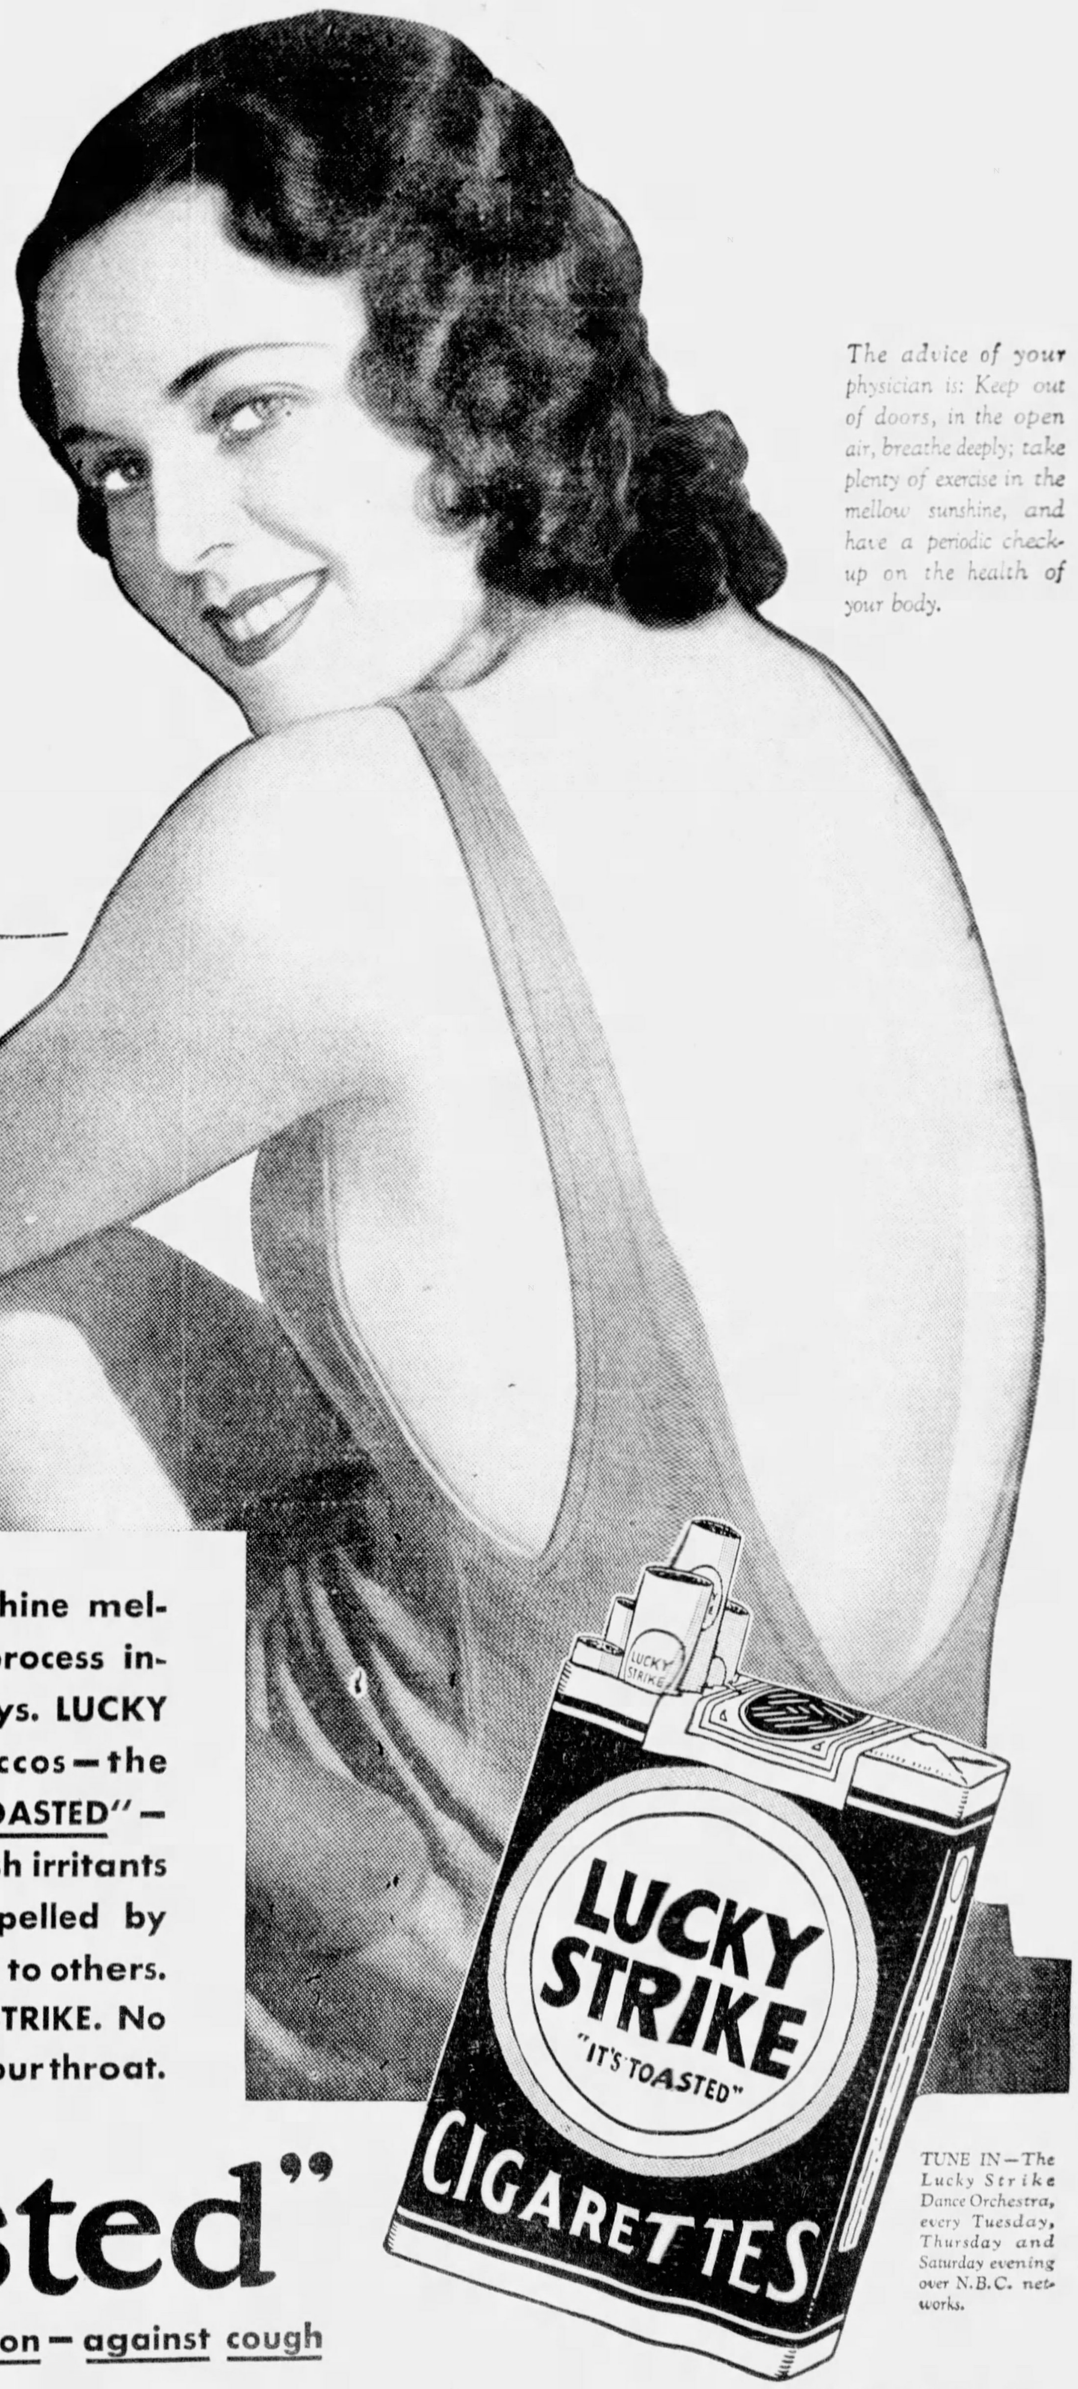
LUCKIES are always kind to your throat



The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

Yes, if you don't already know it, is a substantial informal person rather than dignified. He's not the kind of person who'd spend his time at teas or social affairs where lorgnettes are in order. And one of his disciples, Attorney Dennie Mulvihill, the new assistant clerk of the Senate, is of the same order. Dennie was asked why, at the buffet supper served at the Governor's reception, he ignored the caviar.

"I thought," Dennie explained, "it was bread and jelly."

Boogie-woogie suspected admirers of the firemen in their ice misadventures abandoned checkers and came in its favor. But a new fetish has been set for auction. It's being played in a professional gambling house in town.

The game is a penny a point and most of the players are admitted beginners. If you think you're a good player, find out where they game is and watch them. Your stand around until one of the boys some drops out.

J. G. is no ordinary correspondent. He sends in a contribution, but insists it be used verbatim. Afraid to offend, we bow.

An old theatrical man in a reminiscent mood, referring to the multitudinous articles the property man of the stage had to supply, remembered an incident connected with the celebrated drama, "The Two Orphans," in which Kate Claxton was the reigning star.

The property man had to have a scissor grinder machine that the itinerant grinder carried on his back through the streets. He hadn't time to make one, and besides it had to be an old machine, so he determined to get one by hook or crook. He knew a scissor grinder who plied his art along a popular thoroughfare.

He found him, became friendly and invited him to have a drink in the corner saloon. The grinder put his machine outside the saloon, and while he was drinking, the property man's assistant lifted the machine and sneaked it to the theater, where it was used effectively that night.

Fall From Roof Fatal to Minister

A fall from the roof of his home proved fatal to the Rev. Oliver J. Watson, 72, retired minister of 7133 Hermitage street last night, the coroner's office reported.

He died at his home six hours after he had fallen from the roof, and suffered a fractured skull.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Hoover must have made out a pretty good case against the bonus, for I see where they voted it over him. It wasn't Mr. Hoover they were hooting at, it was "Uncle Andy." They resent him running the show. The whole trouble with the Republicans is their fear of an increase in income tax, especially on higher incomes. They speak of it almost like a national calamity. I really believe if it came to a vote whether to go to war with England, France and Germany combined, or raise the rate on incomes of over $100,000, they would vote war. Yours, WILL.

Eddie Quillan Recognized By Studio as Money At Box Office

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.

Limelight isn't always the gauge of a star's popularity. When last year's reckonings were made, Pathe discovered that "Big Money," featuring the comical Eddie Quillan, was runner-up to "Holiday" in financial returns to the company.

As a result, Eddie will receive more attention on the new program. His next story will be "The Kid from Madrid," in which Eddie internationally becomes a bull-fighter.

Eddie Quillan

Motion-picture fans still remember Sophomore as one of the funniest of the college pictures. It came the year before "Big Money" had the praise Eddie won didn't stick in immediately.

JUST A PAL

Patsy Ruth Miller is incensed. She just received a letter from the studio facial-lift company which began:

"Your name was given to us by one of your best friends."

LATEST GOSSIP

Mae Clark, ex-Broadway showgirl, is to have a part in "The Idol," starring Edward G. Robinson. Incidentally, her romance with John McCormack, former husband of Colleen Moore, seems to have cooled off. . . . Madame Chanel, the famous French designer, left Paris last night for Hollywood. She'll work six months of each year, supervising fashions for United Artists. . . . Roland West, one producer you seldom see about in Hollywood, will launch his new yacht, Joyeta, in about a month. It is 80 feet long and has a cruising radius of 5,000 miles. There are three cabins. . . . Robert Armstrong has left for Europe with Mrs. Armstrong. They'll be gone at least two months. . . . John Wayne, of "The Big Trail," underwent an operation for appendicitis three days ago, and is recovering nicely. . . . The story goes that Gloria Swanson will finance "Rockabye" with her own money. She has engaged Horace Jackson to do the dialogue. He did a brilliant job on "Holiday."

POLLY MAKES GOOD

Polly Moran's imaginary suspense about her contract is at an end. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed her to a new long-term agreement, the first picture under which will be "Politics." This also is Marie Dressler's next. Polly is one of Hollywood's greatest worriers. She always expects to be fired and gloomily doubts she will be able to get a job anywhere else.

Polly Moran

As a matter of fact, Polly has been with M-G-M since 1927, and would be signed up by any one of several other studios if she ever cut loose. It's been 16 years now since she first entered the films, and everyone will tell you that Hollywood wouldn't be the same place without her.

MUSIC

Roth String Quartet

Carnegie Music Hall

PROGRAM.

Quartet in G Major, No. 12 . . . . . Mozart

Quartet Op. 10 . . . . . Debussy

Quartet in E Flat Major, Op. 74 . . . . . Beethoven

The Art Society presented the Roth String Quartet last night in Carnegie Music Hall, there being much less yawning than at the usual chamber music concert. But the Roth ensemble has a good deal to say.

This quartet is a discovery of Mrs. Coolidge. America's best musical propagandist in European studios and concert halls. She enlisted them for her New England chamber music festivals, and since that time they have won the admiration of all reviewers and of the public as well. Their playing is a great surprise, not because of its many fine qualities, but because three of the players are Hungarian and there is so little Magyar fire in their music.

With Mozart, Beethoven and Debussy that fire might have worked to the disadvantage of the style, for these players have been unusually faithful to the traditions of the classics and of the impressionists. The architecture of their music is remarkably in evidence yet their playing remains fluent. Their ensemble is excellent, but neither tone nor phrasing is ever stilted. The Kneisels and Flonzaleys may have richer tone but certainly they never made lovelier music than in the opening movement of the Mozart, or the slow movements of the Beethoven and Debussy. It is during these very moments when life frequently departs from chamber music, that the Roths know how to adjust their rhythms and the volume of their tone to keep the spark of interest aglow.

BOGEY-MAN DRACULA BIRTHDAY GUEST IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

That great big terror, Count Dracula, is loose on the Stanley screen. He's there as featured guest of that theater's third anniversary celebration. He is there to amuse and chill. And he does. But we'd hate to take him home as a house guest.

However, the Count is a quiet enough fellow in the daytime. He keeps to his coffin. But at night he's a sinister one. He slips out of his wooden kimono and goes prowling about, feeding on human blood and scaring pretty girls goofy.

Once upon a time, long before master of ceremonies and organlogues, this fellow lived in Transylvania. Then he died. But—and here's the rub—the demise didn't take. So he became an undead thing, a werewolf in human form. And if you think we're spoofing, you don't know Bram Stoker.

The motion picture, "Dracula," is grim entertainment. It is a more elaborate version of Mr. Stoker's novel than the stage play was. But whether it is more effective is a matter of individual opinion.

SUPERNATURAL RIOT

Movie cameras, of course, allow an unlimited scope of action. Hollywood photography art permits a riot of supernatural atmosphere. A horse-drawn driverless coach whirls you from the real into the unreal almost at the start. Then a foreboding Transylvania castle, with a cellar full of rats, vampires and werewolves, looms. And now off on a gruesome boat ride to England, where most of the action takes place in and about one Dr. Seward's sanitorium.

The cast is efficient. Bela Lugosi is a Dracula of sinister countenance and sepulchral voice. Edward Van Sloan plays the scientist who battles the supernatural, with the understanding that marked his stage appearance here in 1929. Others in the movie cast include David Manners, Helen Chandler, Dwight Frye, Herbert Bunsston and Frances Dade.

"NICE" BOGEY-MAN

Tod Browning directed with an imagination anchored to showman technique. But his is a special flare for this kind of stuff. He used to megaphone the old Lon Chaney thrillers.

Anyway you take it, the picture is an emotional nightmare. And as for us, Count Dracula is our favorite bogey-man.

When the lights flash up and Dick Powell's stage show comes, you mightn't be so excited. But you'll have the satisfaction of knowing your dealing with something natural. And happy Mr. Powell will seem so sane and real that you'll give him some extra applause, whether he deserves it or not. His revue has tap-dancers, singers and Val and Ernie Stanton, goofy comedians. It's a drawn-out affair, though, and a censoring management ought to clean up a couple spots. The bill includes overture and organlogue.

HARD-BOILED EDITOR PRINTS THE NEWS IN THE PENN

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Some of the regular trimmings of a movie newspaper office are left out in "Scandal Sheet," the mellow of the yellows that is on the screen at the Penn, with George Bancroft as the managing editor who prints "all the news." There are no bottles of booze in desks and pockets, and the profanity is much subdued. But the editor is harder boiled than any of his predecessors on the job, and does print all the news, even when his own wife is caught in the web of scandal, even when he himself commits murder. He merely phones in to stop the presses, then he comes and writes the story of the bloody deed before he surrenders to the police.

George Seibel

George Bancroft as the editor, Kay Francis as the wife, and Clive Brook as the banker and Lothario do strong and sincere work, while among the lesser lights of the cast are Regis Toomey, a Pittsburgh boy, and Gilbert Emery, himself a dramatist of rank.

These newspaper men excite our professional jealousy. They could bite a lion and live to write the tale. They would take a snapshot of the Sleeping Beauty before they woke her with a kiss. Nothing is impossible to them—there is no crime except missing a scoop.

Let the film be a lesson to such ruthless newspaper men to lock up their wives when Clive Brook is around.

Hide your dirty linen! The Cave Men of Park Row are coming! Say it with celluloid! Here is a real thriller, well written and well staged, but it flatters our Plural Personal Pronoun. So few can achieve the editorship of the Sing-Sing Herald."

After these high lights on journalism, the stage show had to do something specially glamorous to be in it. It seems that Jans and Whalen in their "Rackets of 1931" revue have offered a prize for hitherto unexploited segments of the rainbow. Do such colors really exist? The Chester Hale Girls look like infra red drinks and ultra-violet mousses.

The dancers are not only arrayed in futuristic prisms, but dance in defiance of gravity and anatomy. That means Betsy Rees, Toma Genaro, Rosette and Luttmann. Watching them you think Robert Conche conducting the orchestra is stationary. You think Dick Leibert's organ lyrics are by J. Milton and J. S. Bach.

You have a chance to rest while Flip the Frog shoes a horse.

'RESURRECTION' NEW PICTURE IN ENRIGHT

"Resurrection," talk screen version of the Tolstoy novel, opened yesterday in the Enright. It co-features Lupe Velez and John Boles. It was directed by Edwin Carewe, the man who also made the silent version several years ago.

The story of "Resurrection" concerns the romance between a prince and a peasant girl. Tragedy stalks their path and a long trek through the snows to Siberia is their fate.

"Song Shoppe" is the title of the new stage show. Brian McDonald again is prominent as master of ceremonies. He sings a number of songs. Other entertainers include Serge Flash, Helen Kennedy, Eddie Stanley and Company and the dancing Rockets.

Let Bobby Jones Tell It

Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., was not always the effective, consistent golfer he is today. For years he, too, had to plug away at the game before he won his first championship. He came close many times but seemed to always fall just short of championships. In attempting to overcome these few faults that kept the coveted laurel wreath of victory from his grasp Bobby learned many things about overcoming the idiosyncracies in one's game. He tells you about these faults and how he remedied them in a series of articles starting tomorrow in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Star and duffer alike can profit by Bobby's experiences.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

In Rebuttal

The editorial page of Tampa (Fla.) Tribune is apparently conducted by a hit-and-run scribbler, who attacks the veracity of this department without so much as offering proof that he is right and we are wrong. The editorial in question follows:

"A certain current columnist, whose zeal for 'wisecracking' frequently leads him far astray from accuracy, sometimes shoots so wide of the mark that a bit of reproof is irresistible. In a collection of statements which he claims convey facts which he 'never knew till now,' this facile commentator remarked a few days ago that the song 'Dixie' was written without reference to the South at all, but to 'little old New York.' Perhaps he will tell us how the author of the deathless ditty could possibly have placed 'away down South in Dixie' somewhere on Manhattan Island, or where, on that island, he located 'the land of cotton,' which the song features. Most columns are 90 per cent humor or alleged humor. In this instance, this particular column is 100 per cent bunk."

The Tampa Tribune, by the way, is a rival rag to the Tampa Times, for which we are the Broadway correspondent. Perhaps that is one of the reasons for the "attack." But let us quote our sources for the Dixie information, which are Harper's History of the U. S. (1906) and Webster's Dictionary. To wit: "Dixie, an imaginary place somewhere in the Southern States, celebrated in a popular Negro melody. A correspondent of the New Orleans Delta offers the following account of the original and early application of the name: 'I do not wish to spoil a pretty illusion, but the real truth is that Dixie is an indigenous Northern Negro refrain as common to the writer as the lamp posts in New York City 70 or 75 years ago.

"It was one of the everyday allusions of boys at that time in all their outdoor sports. And no one ever heard of Dixie's land being other than Manhattan Island until recently, when it has been erroneously supposed to have referred to the South from its connection with pathetic Negro allegory.

"When slavery existed in New York one 'Dixy' owned a large tract of Manhattan Island and a large number of slaves. The increase of the slaves and the increase of the abolition sentiment caused an emigration of slaves to more thorough and secure slave sections, and the Negroes who were thus sent off (many being born there) naturally looked back to their old homes, where they had lived in clover, with feelings of regret as they could not imagine any place like Dixy's.

"Hence, it became synonymous with an ideal locality, combining ease, comfort and material happiness of every description. In those days Negro singing and minstrelsy were in their infancy, and any subject that could be wrought into a ballad was eagerly picked up. This was the case with 'Dixie.' It originated in New York, and assumed the proportion of a song there. In its travels it has been enlarged and has gathered moss. It has picked up a 'note' here and there. A chorus has been added to it, and from an indistinct chant of two or three notes it has become an elaborate melody. But the fact that it is not a Southern song cannot be rubbed out. The fallacy is so popular to the contrary that I have thus been at pains to state the real origin of it.'"

Harper's History of the U. S. quotes practically the same wordage, part of which follows: "It is a simple refrain that originated among Negro emigrants to the South from Manhattan, or New York, Island about 1800. A man named Dixy owned a large tract of land on that island, and many slaves. . . . It became with them synonymous with an earthly paradise, and they sang the refrain in a pathetic manner about the joys at Dixy's. Additions to it elevated it into the dignity of a song."

We trust that the Tampa Tribune's face is red and that it will punish its editorialist by making him stand in a corner with his hands behind his back.

And Contents Noted

"Sir: What do you know about the scars on Scarface Al Capone's cheek? Is it true that he didn't receive the marks in a knife fight, but that he was the victim of a bayonet in France during the war?" — Robert Mayer, New Orleans, La.

Capone saw service, but not in France. He is sensitive about the scar, and his closest friends rather not bring the subject up.

Gerry: "Lady, Play Your Mandolin" was written a year before it became popular. The Rhumba dance craze helped to make it better known. In Havana it is practically the national anthem. Oscar Levant, from Pittsburgh, composed it. Yes, there is a very self-conscious singer on the air who sings, "I'm a Gigolo." But he is so sensitive he sings it: "For he's a gigolo" etc.

"Dear Sir: Some of the boys in our Legion Post were saying the other night that you never see fit to mention the American Legion. I told them you never went in for that sort of thing, but that got me nothing. Your paper rates pretty high with our boys, so help me to prove to them that you have no ugly reason for not mentioning the American Legion."—Lester Garretson, care McCrory, 69 West Ninety-third street, New York City.

Take this from the former adjutant of NVA Post, 690, the big idea is to keep out of the newspapers, not to get into them.

"Here is some advance news for you. The late Edward Bok left some jack to Harvard to award a medal to the bird who did the most for advertising. Last year Cy Curtis, Bok's father-in-law (who has a mess of coins), got the medal. It will soon be announced that F. C. Kendall, publisher of an advertising magazine, will receive the award this year, thus bringing publicity to more or less 'fair' Harvard, which manages this strange contest."

"Say, listen to me for a moment, wiseguy. You wrote that Hilda Ferguson joined the Ziegfeld Follies when she was 15—seven years ago. You mean to stand there and tell me she is only 22 years of age now? Boy, but you are getting funnier every day. Am I in stitches?" — One Who Knows Hilda From Baltimore."

Meow.

"Dear Winchell: To settle a controversy at our house, when and where were you born? When did you enter newspaper work? How many children? Are you blond? Who is your best joke contributor? How many words a day do you write on an average? What is your favorite drink? How do you pronounce the word 'Phffit' which you use a lot in your gossip?"—Betty Locke, 610 Central Park West, New York City.

Homestead Holdup Suspects Arrested

Frank Peats, 39, and Joseph Brown, 29, Negroes, of Whitcomb street, were held for court by Justice of the Peace J. Clyde Miller, of Homestead, last night, accused of robbery. The men are accused of being the pair who yesterday morning held up and robbed Mrs. Mary Piotrowski, of Third avenue and McClure street, Homestead, in her store at that address. The men were committed to jail without bail.

Denny Owns Mine And Western Ranch

Reginald Denny, besides being an actor, engages in several businesses. He is principal owner in a gold mine, near the famous Argonaut in the Sierras. Denny organized a company, hired engineers, and already has the mine on a good paying basis. He also owns a large western ranch.

PIONEERS MOVE WEST IN ALDINE FILM

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Some day the movie-makers are going to get the West settled. At least, they are making a grand effort.

Over in the Aldine we find another pioneer-trekking drama. It is crowded with the usual movie outdoor stuff—Indians, soldiers, lumbering wagon trains, old scouts and a young fellow and young girl. And it is titled, "Fighting Caravans."

The film is based on a Zane Grey story and it has a familiar look—as if it appeared as a silent in the distant movie past. But maybe this familiar note is only because it keeps so close to the usual movie formula in pioneer drama.

Gary Cooper is the hero. Lily Damita is the heroine. And Tully Marshall and Ernest Torrence, who rode the plains in Jimmy Cruze's still remembered "Covered Wagon," are together again in this one as a couple of old cronies. They brighten up the piece a lot.

"Fighting Caravans" has a good Indian fight and some other thrills. It also has some impressive photography.

Comedienne Takes Dancing Lessons

Charlotte Greenwood, who won fame dancing on the stage, doesn't dance any more—but still takes dancing lessons regularly. The comic heroine of "Stepping Out" says it's the finest form of physical and mental relaxation an actress can have.

KING VIDOR TO FILM ELMER RICE'S PLAY

King Vidor, according to an announcement by Samuel Goldwyn, has been signed to direct "Street Scene" when the talking version of Elmer Rice's Pulitzer Prize play goes into production shortly. Producer Goldwyn made arrangements through Irving Thalberg, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, to whom Vidor is under contract, for the release of the director.

This is the first picture Vidor will have made off the M-G-M lot in many years. M-G-M officials agreed to the deal in view of the importance of the play and the fact it is expected to add to the reputation of the director through the opportunities it affords for interpretive treatment and artistic expression.

Pittsburghers Entertain With Dinner at Gay Bahama Resort

Among the gayest of gay resorts is Nassau with its picturesque days and romantic nights. There a brilliant social social gathering may be found.

Among those at Nassau this week have been the Eugene W. Pargnys, who gave a dinner at the New Colonial Grill. And among their guests were the Lewis A. Parks, of Sewickley; Lady Williams-Taylor, Capt. Gilbert G. Symonds, aide-de-camp to Gov. Charles R. Orr; Gwynne A. Rust and Mrs. R. J. Christie. And, of course, the Pargny's niece, Clodagh McCune, was a guest, too.

News has just reached me from Palm Beach that the Edward Small Moores, of New York, gave a dinner Thursday night at San Cuidado in honor of their house guests, Capt. and Mrs. Cyrus R. Miller, of Sewickley. Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Miller are sisters.

Members of College Club Hear Interesting Talk On English Silver

Any man who makes things lovelier is contributing to civilization said Francis A. Keating, president of the Grogan Company, in his delightful talk on "Old English Silver" before the College Club yesterday. If the silversmith's marks have not been obliterated, it is possible to trace every piece of English silver made since 1260, the speaker said, as he explained that in early times the alteration of markings on silver was punishable by death and that later the penalty was 50 years of penal servitude. Today the sentence is for 20 years—and is enforced, Mr. Keating supplemented.

Mr. Keating harked back to the days when distinguished families sought and cherished handwrought things as necessary accompaniments to living. The early Christians brought the knowledge of silver working with them to England, and at first the art was associated only with church accessories.

Mr. Keating exhibited choice pieces of silver which illustrated the English silversmith's ideal of exquisite craftsmanship and decorative beauty. The oldest piece was a lovely chalice of John Ward's, dated 1703, and there was a coffee pourer of 1783 with a funnel through the top which, filled with hot water, kept the coffee at the right temperature. A tray bearing the crest of the Duke of Cumberland, which Mr. Keating bought at auction in London, was another piece displayed. He touched on Colonial silver also, and to illustrate the modern manufacture of silver he used Bureau of Mines slides.

SPRING FROCKS HAVE MANY BOWS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—The loop is round again and is being noted as a most important detail on both frocks and hats. One has only to look at a frock that features loops to realize what a smart and novel trimming it is and what soft charm it gives a frock. Some of the newest and most costly frocks are built almost entirely of loops, thus achieving the necessary line and a most picturesque trimming at the same time.

THE LOOPED FROCK always has a most expensive air, something that most women do not seem to object to one tiny bit. Bow-knots, too, are also making their reappearance and are used not only for daytime frocks, but for the most important frocks. Of course the bow-knot as a trimming has to be carefully handled, otherwise it is inclined to be just too, too girlish and so insipid.

FROM THE SMART establishment of Maggy Rouff comes an evening frock that combines bow-knots and loops and is extraordinarily smart and wearable. The frock is of black crepe romain—an always desirable medium for the useful frock that has to be good-looking as well. It is built entirely of looped strips of the material in varying lengths. The bodice is ingeniously closed at the side back with a succession of tiny bow-knots. The decolletage in front is square, but, as seen in the sketch, becomes V shaped in back.

WIFE OF FORMER SHERIFF SUES

Judd H. Bruff, of the Hotel Pittsburgher, former sheriff of Allegheny County, frequently left her for two or three weeks at a time and told her on his return that it was none of her business where he had been, according to the testimony of Mrs. Edith H. Bruff, of the Hotel Henry, during the hearing of her divorce action before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court.

She charged indignities, stating that he had abused her. They were married January 6, 1917, and were separated several times, having lived at Stoneboro, Pa., and at the Fort Pitt Hotel here, she testified.

CHAPLIN FILM WINS LONDON

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The king of comedy rode the heights of triumph in his native city today.

London was profuse in its praise of Charlie Chaplin after the premiere of "City Lights," shown last night. Crowds lined the vicinity of the Dominion Theater, waiting eagerly in a dismal rain in the hope of catching a glimpse of the comedian. But he slipped into the theater by a side door.

It was the most spectacular premiere ever witnessed by the capital, rendered impressive by the distinguished group of notables present. Among them were Lord and Lady Astor, George Bernard Shaw, Elinor Glyn, Allistair MacDonald, Baroness Rothchild and others.

After the performance Shaw said:

"In all my life I have never before known what comedy truly meant. I laughed as I have never laughed before."

Sponge for Cornponers

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

of the crumblers. Which doesn't weaken the perennial strength of that famous screen sub-title:

"Then came the dunk."

The dunking school points to the old proverb: "You cannot crumble your cake and dunk it too."

This has the support of hash-house waiters who always spill a little coffee into the saucer to save you the trouble.

We have tried both the crumbling and dunking methods. As a compromise we suggest mopping it up with a sponge. The crumblers lost some of the biggest pieces. While dunking stains the finger nails.

Sap is stirring in the trees. And it's also churning itself into butter down in Wall street.

The boys are back at their lessons on their old cracked slates. New highs have been set for old ceilings.

Wall street is the pulse of the nation. Not only the nation, but the world. That's enough territory for one day.

Trading is speeding itself up to the selling point. We're going back into those five-million share days. And that means prosperity.

The burned child dreads the blindfold cigaret test. We lost the chicken farm down to the last feather. But they can put our name back on the sucker list.

There is something in speculation that makes the blood boil with anticipation, hope and other ingredients. We all want to get rich and we do not want to take a daily shower bath in perspiration to get there.

So you can brush the decimal points off the sucker list and let Abou Ben Adhem's name lead all the rest. He not only loved his fellow men but he put it in writing in the book of gold.

Two years ago we sang that "Darwinian lullaby: "Loppa-soola Merger Made a Monkey Out of Me."

We don't even know what they merged. But they let us in on the ground floor. That's all there was. There wasn't even a roof.

But we would rather have the thrill of being a millionaire for one day than spend the rest of our lives eating our daily bread. We don't like the mucilage those bakers put on the labels.

So put us back on the sucker list. It's a lovely dish. Once again we want to answer the telephone and hear the broker say: "All is lost save honor. There will be an armistice to count your pennies and bury the dead."

Who wants to put by a couple of dollars a week for your old age? We can get gray, bent and ancient quicker than that.

By the way, we do know what they merged. It was us with the chute.

But a sucker is a sucker, on land or sea. He is amphibious. So engrave your name on the patched scroll of fame and let's go.

Once again we are taking the diving board up to the roof.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Do You Have a Romeo Who Doesn't Know You?

Spoke to Her

"Is it possible to really love a man you have never been out with—or even introduced to?

"Let me explain just what I mean. You see, Sally, I have loved the man I'm talking about for about four years now, and, strange to say, it seems to be the real thing. For if it wasn't, wouldn't I have forgotten him by now?

"You see we lived next door to where he worked, so every day I would see him. Several times at first he spoke to me, as I was just a little more than a kid. But one day I was sitting on our porch and he spoke to me as he went by. I know this will seem funny to you but from then on I found myself looking forward to the time when I would see him again. I was always out there when I thought he would be coming out.

"I never used to pay the least attention to any fellow, no matter what he would say, but somehow this one seemed different.

Can't Forget Him

"Well, then we moved away, I welcomed that because it hurt me to see him speaking to other girls, and I thought it would help me to get over my infatuation if I didn't see him any more. But I've not forgotten him at all. On the contrary, my love seems all the more intense. It seems like I can never get interested in any one but him. I meet quite a few nice fellows, and I go to parties and shows with them, but it seems that the more I try to go out, the more that fellow is on my mind. He is on my mind all day long. I'm always wondering what he is doing for the week-end, and if he is thinking of me.

Shirks Real Life

Like many a young person—and mine an older one, too—you're afraid of life—afraid of reality. You've lived in dreams—beautiful dreams, comfortable dreams, flattering dreams, in which you are always the happy heroine, unbothered by tiresome chores and disagreeable people. And you want to continue to live in those dreams because, in comparison to them, everything else seems ugly and unpleasant.

Regular people seem so much more stupid, so much more unkind than dream people. Regular people may laugh at you, or bore you, or say unpleasant things to you, or demand difficult things from you. And so you cling to your dreams and turn your face from real life.

Why does this stranger seem so much more wonderful than all other men?

Why are you sure you're in love with him?

Because he is a dream—and you're in love with a dream.

If you really knew him you would eventually find the same tiresome traits in him that you find in other men. But since you don't know him, you see him through rosy clouds of romance.

And rosy clouds of romance are the best things you like.

Snap out of it! The normal, healthy woman part of you wants to live.

PERSHING PROTESTED FAILURE TO REWARD OFFICERS

GIVEN PROMISE OF TRAINING CHANGES

Almost Too Late, Staff at Home Decides It Will Act On Lessons Taught in A.E.F.

MY EXPERIENCES IN WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

Commander-in-Chief, American Forces.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The 32d, 35th, 42d and 77th Divisions were now in training under the recently organized Third Corps. Especial effort was being made to hasten their preparation in both staff and line in anticipation of an early call for more serious service.

I inspected these troops June 19-22, 1918, and my impressions were favorable, although a number of officers were found unfamiliar with the principles of tactical leadership. In such hastily trained units this was hardly surprising, especially in view of the known defects of the instruction at home.

Gen. Pershing

Many were found with but slight appreciation of the natural defensive possibilities of a given position. Some battalion and even regimental commanders had not thought to ascertain the exact location of their front lines, and of course had failed to work out the details of preparation against a possible attack.

My predilection for detailed instruction in minor tactics, growing out of my large previous personal supervision of training in both small and large units, led me quickly to discover deficiencies.

On all these visits I emphasized the importance of understanding basic principles of both offensive and defensive measures, stressed provision for mutual support among units, and above all the importance of establishing every possible means of communication among the different elements of a command.

So much depends upon the leader of an organization that the process of selection of the more capable and the elimination of the unfit were constantly in operation. A competent leader can get efficient service from poor troops, while an incapable leader can demoralize the best troops.

Lacked Aggressiveness

Training in quiet sectors in association with French divisions, upon which they laid so much stress, was often disappointing, as French units coming out of the battle line, tired and worn, were not active and failed to set an example of aggressiveness, which we were striving to inculcate in our units.

Of course our own officers were responsible, but they were often handicapped by the lethargy and laxity of the French. After considerable experience, it was the inevitable conclusion that, except for the details of trench warfare, training under the French or British was of little value.

The adherence at home to instruction in trench warfare that was advocated by French instructors left us to each open warfare. This was a task not easily overcome in the brief time that could be devoted to training after troops began to arrive in large numbers, under circumstances that demanded their early entry into active participation in operations. I had continued to insist that this question be given serious attention by the War Department.

The following extract from a cable sent to Washington June 20 seems pertinent:

"The reasons for sending men with insufficient instruction are fully appreciated in view of the large increase in number of troops sent over during the past three months, and the inequalities in training are fully considered here.

"The plan of separating recently drafted men from divisions and giving them special training for a longer period than the others before being put in the line has already been adopted. It will, however, reduce the fighting strength considerably of several divisions to be ordered into the line.

Training System Faulty

"This situation emphasizes the importance of establishing the rule at home of keeping divisions intact, both as to officers and enlisted men, from the time they are organized until they are sent to France.

"The plan of using divisions through which to pass large numbers of men for instruction is very detrimental to thorough training of the divisions. It need not be pointed out that it takes much time to consolidate a division into a homogeneous fighting unit and build up its esprit. Almost without exception, division commanders complain of the methods that have been followed. I recommend that in future the training of replacements and of special troops of all kinds be kept distinct from that of divisions.

"Our inspections of divisions recently arrived show that the training is uneven and varies much in different divisions. It appears superficial in many cases and generally lacks spirit and aggressiveness. In most of these divisions little attention has been given to training in open warfare, and in this regard younger officers are especially deficient.

"The training appears to have been carried on in a perfunctory way and without efficient supervision. The general impression is that division officers have leaned too heavily on French instructors, whose ideas are not ordinarily in accordance with our own."

With good intent, no doubt, the War Department in July by cable stated that the policy of keeping divisions intact would be followed, although the harm had already been done, as most of the divisions that served abroad had departed by that time or were sent soon afterwards.

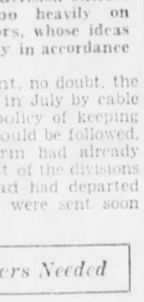
Active Officers Needed

After visits to units that had lately joined, further attention was given to the physical qualifications necessary in our higher officers. The British and French both had commented unfavorably upon the evident inactivity of many and even the infirmity of a few of the officers who had been sent over during the preceding months to observe and study conditions at the front.

It had been proved over and over again by the Allies that only the strongest could stand the continuous and nerve-racking strain of actual battle. Many of the disasters that had come to the Allies were due in a large part to the lack of energy and alertness on the part of older commanders, who often failed to exercise that eternal personal supervision and tactical direction necessary to success.

M. Clemenceau himself, then 76, said that the French had made a serious error in retaining old officers in the service whom they later had to retire in considerable numbers.

It was a question not merely of being able to pass a perfunctory medical examination, but vigor, stamina and the instincts of leadership were required. Inactive officers only threw extra burdens upon their staffs. We had too long been accustomed in our service to regard a general officer's position as one that did not require activity.



M. Clemenceau

Not a few of the older officers, upon being called to high command, had occupied themselves too much with minor matters of administration, others with supply, to the neglect of personal supervision of instruction of their commands in the tactical requirements of battle. It was the exception to find such men equal to the active command of troops.

Advocates Age Limits

I had hardly recommended that officers beyond the age of forty for Brigadiers and forty-five for Major-Generals should not be selected for active command in France except in rare instances. It had become no longer a question of theory.

Yet up to the end valuable time was spent in attempts to prepare such officers for service, time which should have been devoted to the training of more promising material.

All questions of policy were as far as possible taken up with the secretary of war. My experience in attempting to cover such matters by cable to the secretary furnished conclusive evidence that the best way to get them before him was through direct mail correspondence, as frequently, cabled requests were acted on without his knowledge and often in a manner adverse to the best interests. One of these questions was that of promotion to the grade of general officer.

After frequent attempts to obtain the promotion of several colonels whose abilities had been thoroughly tested in active service, and having failed to get their names included in a recent list of promotions, I sent a cable asking a reconsideration of my recommendations, suggesting that it be shown the secretary in person.

I also wrote the secretary immediately, giving him my point of view and explaining just what the promotion of tried officers with the armies would mean to efficiency in my command.

In a letter from him some time later, it was clear that the cable had not been submitted to him, as he stated in his usual cordial manner that it was his full intention to give every consideration to the men of proved efficiency in France, which was, in principle, all that I could wish. In practice, however, this was not altogether carried out by his subordinates.

News Reports Issued

One subject that caused Secretary Baker some anxiety at that time was giving the press news of our operations in a way that would meet the persistent demands without disclosing the numbers or location of our forces, and which would "prevent the War Department from being regarded as suppressing and withholding news."

Although necessarily never entirely satisfactory from either the news point of view or from that of morale building at home, this matter was adjusted as far as practicable through the distribution to the press by the Department of material contained in the periodical communiques published from my headquarters and cabled to the Secretary.

These and such information from my confidential cables on the situation as the War Department thought might be safely given out furnished thereafter the basis of information to the press at home. It was, of course, fully recognized among the armies that communiques rarely gave either fully or frankly all the facts.

A complete statement in a communique might often have discouraged one's own people and encouraged the enemy. It was therefore natural that communiques by opposing armies reporting the same engagement were often widely at variance.

My diary notes the establishment of the Military Board of Allied Supply at this time, June 22, 1918. The principle of cooperation as to supplies in common use among the armies which I had long advocated finally was recognized after prolonged debate and discussion.

Dawes on Board

The board consisted of one representative from each of the Allied armies. It was simply the representative body of the several supply departments of the respective armies, and had nothing whatever to do with actual procurement.

It was expected to study questions of supply and adopt proper measures for the co-ordination of Allied resources and utilities.

Our supply officers were enjoined to utilize the services of the board in seeking the equitable allotment of supplies and in co-operating with corresponding supply officers of the Allied armies.

Col. Charles G. Dawes, who had charge in a more limited sphere of the co-ordination of our own supply departments, was detailed as the American member of the board.

Gen. Dawes

Cables from the War Department June 22 stated that the colored people at home were being told that Negro soldiers in France were always placed in the most dangerous positions, were being sacrificed to save white troops, and were often left on the field to die without medical attention.

It was not difficult to guess the origin of this sort of propaganda. As a matter of fact, none of these troops had been in line except in quiet sectors. Those I had recently seen were in fine spirits and seemed keen for active service.

Negro Lads Impressive

The only colored combat troops in France were those of the 92nd Division, then in a quiet sector in the Vosges, and the four infantry regiments of the 93d, each attached to a French division. Several individuals serving with the French had already received the Croix de Guerre for conduct in raids.

My service with colored troops in the Army had left a favorable impression in my mind. In the field, on the frontier and elsewhere they were reliable and courageous, and the old 10th Cavalry (colored), with which I served in Cuba, made an enviable record there. Under capable white officers, and with sufficient training, colored troops had always acquitted themselves creditably.

When told of these rumors the colored troops were indignant, and later they did everything possible to counteract such false reports. It was gratifying to learn shortly afterward that Congress had passed very positive legislation against that sort of propaganda. The following paragraph from a cable sent at the time is pertinent:

"Exploits of two colored infantrymen some weeks ago in repelling much larger German patrol, killing and wounding several Germans and winning Croix de Guerre by their gallantry has roused fine spirit of emulation throughout colored troops, all of whom are looking forward to more active service. Only regret expressed by colored troops is that they are not given more dangerous work to do.

"They are especially amused at the stories being circulated that the American colored troops are placed in the most dangerous positions, and all are desirous of having more active service than has been permitted them so far."

NEW STATION LOCATES IN OAKLAND

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—McNamee and Husing continue to have a monopoly on the broadcasts of sports events with the exception of those concerned with hoss-racing. Their activities range all the way from marble-shooting to leather-pushing.

With the exception of Clem McCarthy, Bill Munday and Ford Frick, adjective-assemblers on newspapers are seldom summoned for the broadcasting of sporting events. I wonder why. There are men in New York City—I'm thinking particularly of Runyon, McGeehan, Kieran, Sullivan, Kofoed and Joe Williams—whose presence at the microphones would add greater zest to the radio story, especially that part of the story that concerns the highlights of the contest.

International broadcasting has passed beyond the phase of novelty. Programs from abroad are now heard with almost daily regularity. And all the leading capitals of Europe are represented save Paris and Moscow.

Radio's progress is ever so slow in that dear old Paris, more's the pity. Marconi ought to do something about it. There ought to be some compensation to the thousands of Americans who have been forced to forego their annual visits to the French capital.

Europe is now hearing the Roxy Sunday morning band of 200 musicians, one of the two leading musical programs that are broadcast regularly in America. As a result Europe's opinion of American broadcasting must be appreciably heightened.

The Liberty Bell on the air sounded like nothing so much as the tapping of an empty barrel.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra does not go in for intricate and heavy classics in its Sunday night radio concerts. But what it can do to a Sousa march. It plays "Washington Post" with a zip that would make the palsied throw away their crutches.

Wonder why the broadcasters have not yet unearthed for the armchairs the great stories of the political arena.

Robert Sauer, composer of the current ballad hit, "Springtime in the Rockies," is the bandmaster of Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

Government officials are taking radio speaking more seriously. They are now doing their coughing before they go on the air. They are also using more care in turning over pages.

The deft lyrics of P. G. Wodehouse are seldom aired—such things with their adroit blend of sentiment and comedy as "A Bungalow in Quogue," written to the music of Jerome Kern.

Theodore A. Metz has collected $100,000 from his famous tune, "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight"—and has spent every cent of it.

There is, as yet, no indication that Milton J. Cross, announcer, has adopted the philosophy of the telephone system: "the voice with the smile wins."

A tear, comrades, for the politicians. They form the only class on the air that does not receive a pay envelope for its services.

The frankest bean-spilling yet to fall on American ears from London was that aired by Lord Grey, of Falloden, when he said on Washington's Birthday that "Chatham, Pitt and Burke were right and George III. and his ministers were wrong."

Radio announcers have at last actually acclaimed Victor Herbert over the microphones as "the backbone of American broadcasting." It was about time.

Let Bobby Jones Tell It!

Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., was not always the effective, consistent golfer he is today. For years he, too, had to plug away at the game before he won his first championship. He came close many times but seemed to always fall just short of championships. In attempting to overcome these few faults that kept the coveted laurel wreath of victory from his grasp Bobby learned many things about overcoming the idiosyncracies in one's game. He tells you about these faults and how he remedied them in a series of articles starting tomorrow in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Star and duffer alike can profit by Bobby's experiences.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Station for WWSW, the new Pittsburgh station to replace WMBJ, are under construction on the tenth floor of the Hotel Schenley in Oakland, while the Walker-Downing Radio Corporation has until May 28 to put the station on the air, plans are being rushed to formally dedicate the studios by April 1. Benjamin Haden, manager of the Federal Radio Commission, WWSW is to assume the 1,500 kilocycle assignment now being used by WMBJ. Power has been limited to 100 watts. WMBJ is still operating daily, although the commission refused to renew their license on January 31. Nathan B. Williams, counsel for Rev. John Sprout, owner of WMBJ, insists that WMBJ is operating under a "supersedeas," or writ, which automatically serves as a stay order against the commission. Counsel for the radio board disputes the efficacy of this writ. They have informed the Rev. Sprout that he is violating the radio act which prescribes a penalty of five years' imprisonment or $5,000 fine, or both, for broadcasting without a federal license.

Princess Atalie

In brief, WWSW hesitates to take the air until WMBJ is given the air.

Gilbert Gable, adventurer whose Saturday night period on 7 45 is one of the delights, brings Princess Atalie, Indian prima donna, to the WEAF-WCAE audience this evening.

Take our tip and don't miss Del Staigers, cornetist, playing "Carnival of Venice" with Goldman's Band, WCAE at 9.

Perhaps the buriest man in radio and without doubt the funniest is Ray Kinkaid, alias Ambrose J. Weems, alias Bill Borealis, alias—why go on? Ray stood us up for a comic interview in KDKA studios the other day and we could hardly keep a straight face.

After that catastrophe he went to his hotel room and wrote the continuity for the Cuckoo Hour which you may hear on KDKA at 10 tonight.

Ray was obviously funny last night as Bill Borealis with the Eskimos. As we have told you before, this program is given in the Times Square studio with Ray and members of the band attired in white fur suits for the benefit of customers looking through the so-many ton glass curtain.

SOOTED OR NOT?

Well, Ray explained that some of the suits were too large, particularly the one worn by the bass player next to Harry Reser.

Said Ray: "His suit is really so large that he can walk around in it for days. Why, just recently we saw smoke issuing from the neck of the suit and on investigation found that this musician was cooking his dinner on a fire stove.

"I asked him if he was hibernating and he answered, 'No. My father was born in Ireland, but I was born in Iowa.'"

We never knew until yesterday that the Red Arrow Quartet spends two hours a day rehearsing in a railroad freight house under the guidance of Maestro Frank Weis. Hear them do "Would You Like to Take a Walk" on KDKA at 11:20.

THIS AND THAT

Jack Royal, formerly manager at WTAM, now program director at NBC, is working on our suggestion to sychronize the playing of a piano in one city and a soloist singing in another . . . he also pens that he plans an "amateur night" in NBC studios in the near future . . . WBT at Charlotte N. C. heas a new chain of Columbia stations to be known as the Dixie network, March 23 . . . Frederick G. Rodgers, who has officiated in mbell ringing in Durham Cathedral, Englandw, presides over an attractive new program for KDKA fans at 6:05 tomorrow . . . it's called "The Voices of the Bells" and will blend chimes, poetry and vocal selections.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the Supreme Court is to be honored on his ninetieth birthday in a Columbia network broadcast on Sunday, March 8, at 10:30.

News events are to be dramatized in a new program series to start over WJAS next Friday night at 10:30.

STUBBORN SORE QUICKLY YIELDS TO RESINOL

"For a long time I was incapacitated by a sore which resulted from a sliver run under my thumb nail. Practically my whole hand became infected. For three months my thumb would not heal and nail would not grow on it. After trying several prescribed treatments to no avail, I purchased Resinol Ointment. Inside of two weeks the sore began to heal and after the third week the new nail was almost complete." (Signed)—

SOUTHPAW'S CASE MAY END IN TRADE

Larry French

WITH THE EXCEPTION of Outfielder Paul Waner, who has retained the contract originally sent him, and who probably would have signed it by this time but for the fact that he has been laid up with an infected leg in a St. Louis hospital, Larry French, southpaw pitcher, is the only member of the Pittsburgh club unsigned for 1931, following the enrollment of Outfielder Adam Comorosky.

The fact that French refused to sign at the terms offered, and failed to report at the Paso Robles training camp at the time appointed for the battery man, makes him the club's only actual holdout, but evidently the situation is not causing any worry at Buccaneer headquarters. The management appears to stand pat on what has been offered to the left-hander, and its attitude indicates the possibility that if Larry does not come into the fold at an early date steps may be taken to trade him to some other National League club.

THOUGH THE CORSAIR officials are following their usual policy in such cases and are declining to discuss the matter, it is clear that they are not overly pleased at French's action. It is understood that the club voluntarily offered French a salary increase running into four figures, and that it considers this a fair advance inasmuch as Larry failed to win as many games last season as he lost.

But French spurned the proffered advance and demanded a salary said to be more than twice as large as the sum he received last season. Judging from its air, the management is not inclined to enter into any lengthy squabble with Larry, and it gives the impression that unless the pitcher comes down in his terms and reports at Paso Robles a deal to swap him will not be beyond the bounds of possibility.

IF MATTERS COME to such a pass that it is deemed advisable to trade French, the Pittsburgh club probably will try to get another left-hand pitcher in exchange as the only other southpaws on the roster are Charley Wood and John Vanusek. Wood looks like a certain winner, but Vanusek is comparatively inexperienced.

This is French's third year on the Pittsburgh club, and he has had a contract dispute with the owners each spring. His record shows seven victories and five defeats in 1929, and 17 victories and 18 defeats last year.

AN OLD-TIMER like Kid Gleason, who has been making spring trips since 1888, sees great changes in baseball training. "Why, say, we used to train with a wash bowl and a pitcher," he snorted. "These hillbillies come up and kick like steers—why, hell's bells, they want cologne in their bath water. On the trip down I heard a rookie on the Pullman tell the porter to bring him a glass of water. Can you imagine that? Too lazy to get his own drink of water. Huh, we'd have stuffed a guy like that under the seat and kept him there in the old days."

Adam Comorosky

WHILE THERE NEVER had been any doubt that Adam Comorosky would pen his name on a Pirate parchment sooner or later, local fans are gratified that he has signed in time to get the benefit of almost the full training period.

Comorosky will be in camp at Paso Robles before the end of next week and it is assured that he will be in tip-top shape for the opening of the pennant season six weeks from next Tuesday. This means that at least two of the regular outfielders will be on their best edge for the start even if Paul Waner is held back to some slight extent by his late beginning.

THE PROSPECT THAT Comorosky will improve still further over what he showed in 1929 and 1930 holds out the promise that he will be more valuable than ever to the team. Though his batting average dropped to .313 last year as compared with .321 the preceding season, due to a slump near the finish, his slugging record took a big jump.

Against six homers, 11 triples and 26 doubles in 1929, the Polish farruper last year connected for 12 homers, 23 triples and 47 doubles, leading the league in triples and sacrifice hits. He also knocked in 119 runs. Continuing that advance, this ought to be his biggest year since he came into the majors.

IF LAST NIGHT'S fight wasn't one of "those things," though the commission evidently suspected it had been when it held up the purses of both men pending an investigation, Billy Petrolle certainly is a fighter who can't be doped. Late in 1929, King Tut gave him such a terrific beating in 10 rounds that Petrolle looked to be done and really did announce his retirement from the ring, only to start a great come-back five months later and win 16 out of 17 fights, with victories over Jimmy McLarnin and Tony Canzoneri included. Four weeks ago Tut knocked him out in 24 seconds, his third straight victory over him, and this time there appeared to be no doubt that Billy was through. Yet in New York last night, their sixth meeting, Petrolle turned right around and kicked over the dope bucket again by knocking out (or appearing to knock out) the same Tut in the fourth round, the first time the King ever took the count.

A FIGHTER WHO has once been knocked out by a certain opponent is supposed to be up against an almost hopeless handicap when he faces that opponent again, but if last night's kayo was not faked Petrolle proved one of the rare exceptions.

Here's an odd record: Italian fighters have gone unbeaten in 10 consecutive main bouts in New York in the last four months, barring one in which both principals were of that race—Kid Francis against Eddie Shea. One other event between two Italians, Midget Wolgast and Frankie Genaro, ended in a draw. In all the other Italians were victorious—Petrolle over McLarnin and Tut, Fidel LaBarba over Kid Chocolate and Bud Taylor, Tony Canzoneri over Al Singer, Battling Battalino over Chocolate and Vince Dundee over Len Harvey twice.

AS TO THE prospect that the race horse Sun Beau may become the greatest money winner in turf history, the most confident person of all appears to be the one who should know more about the thoroughbred than anybody else.

Willis S. Kilmer

He is Frank Coltiletti, noted jockey, who not only will ride Sun Beau, but who is helping Trainer Doc Crawford prepare the famous son of Sun Briar for the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap, to be run on Sunday, March 22. Coltiletti says Sun Beau is in the best shape of his career and considers him a sure thing to win the big purse.

IF SUN BEAU does that, Willis Sharpe Kilmer will have the distinction of owning the greatest money winner of all time. For the horse already has $264,819 to his credit, and victory at Agua Caliente would put him ahead of Gallant Fox, with $341,365, and all the rest. True as he is six years old, he has had five years in which to pile up his winnings, whereas Gallant Fox made his record in two seasons, but that will not keep Sun Beau from being entitled to the position at the head of the list. And even if he breaks the record by winning the Agua Caliente Handicap, Sun Beau may not stop there, as it is planned to start him in the Dixie, Brooklyn, Suburban and other stakes, which will give him a chance to pass the $400,000 mark.

GAMES TONIGHT.
London at Pittsburgh.
Cleveland at Buffalo.

By CARL W. SHATTO.

The Yellow Jackets today are balanced on the Great Divide. Tonight they are to meet the London Tecumsehs in an International Hockey League fixture at Duquesne Garden, and, if they lose to the invaders, they will slip down the slope that leads to oblivion. Should they conquer the warriors from across the border, however, their path will lead down the sunny slope overlooking the International League championship play-offs.

And regardless of which path the Schooley icemen are destined to choose, it is likely that there can be no turning back. Should they lose tonight they will drop two full games below the select money circle, and two full games is an almost insurmountable handicap when only seven more contests remain to be played. A victory will enable the locals to tie the Tecumsehs for fourth place (the last play-off berth) and will put them in a good position to surge past not only London but also Cleveland and Windsor, the teams just ahead.

TOUGH FIGHT PROMISED

When the Tecumsehs last appeared here, exactly two weeks ago, they were nosed out in an extra period battle which was just about as thrilling and hard fought as any witnessed at the Garden this season. Tonight's game isn't likely to be any tea party, for the Tecumsehs are in as perilous a position as are the Jackets. Both teams realize that the joust is likely to make or break an entire season of torrid milling.

The Tecumsehs ever have been tough foemen, and their work in recent games indicates that they now are at the peak of their form. In their last three starts they have defeated Windsor and Syracuse and tied Buffalo's pacesetters.

The Jackets aren't in the best of condition for a hot fight, but neither are they in a particularly bad way. All of the men appear to be in fine form, and the quality of their play will depend on whether or not they have been able to retrieve some of the reserve strength that they spent so freely in their futile fight against Windsor on Thursday.

In the joust with the Bulldogs

BELIEVE IT OR NOT (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: WATER IS THE MOST POWERFUL EXPLOSIVE KNOWN—The greatest concentration of any gas is its liquid form. A mixture of hydrogen and oxygen (the constituents of water) in any state is one of the most explosive mixtures known. Igniting a mixture of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen would cause an explosion, forming water, which would be instantly converted into steam by the very high temperature. The tremendous steam pressure created in this explosion would be the most powerful disruptive force known to science. CHRIS PETERSEN'S BOOTS—In Ringkoebing, Denmark, is an exhibit of Chris Petersen's lifetime boots, which were made for him in 1864, when he lived in Hee, Denmark. He wore them through the great war between Germany and Denmark in 1864, and they proved so serviceable that he kept wearing them until his death in 1917. The boots now are preserved in the museum at Ringkoebing.

TOMORROW: TWENTY-TWO YEARS IN THE MAJORS.

OLD PANTHERS BANQUET

Members of the Coaches' and Captains' Association of Pitt gathered with Pitt lettermen of various vintages and various branches of sport for dinner at the Schenley Hotel last evening and then attended the Pitt-Tech game in the Stadium in a body.

Bert Smyers, the oldest letterman at Pitt, who played, so they say, some 40 years ago, was toastmaster. Talks were made by Dr. H. C. Carlson, basketball coach; Jock Sutherland, the gridiron mentor, and Floyd Rose.

Dr. Homer C. Roe, '10, was elected president of the organization for the coming year. Other officers put through on the same slate included Sam K. Hunter, '00, first vice president; Dr. George McLaren, '19, second vice president; George I. Carson, '23, secretary, and C. E. (Andy) Gustafson, '20, treasurer.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 28.—West Virginia University's track and field team overwhelmed the University of Pittsburgh in an indoor meet here last night 76-28.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 28.—Well, folks, I'm kinda down around this village on account of my ol' friend, Larry French, being a holdout. Larry is fine company, especially for a roommate. Jule has me in with a flock of farmhands; they's five of us in the same room, but that keeps any boy from getting lonesome.

One guy from the country brought a big alarm clock along. You see, Jule leaves a call for seven-forty-five, but this bird has the alarm set for seven bells to make sure he beats the rest of us to the dinin' room. A couple of us birds in the room have seen a little city life and that alarm sketch doesn't go over so big. When the big buzzer began to buzz yesterday, we knocked it off the bureau with a couple of straight shots with our shoes.

One of the other rookies has a pile of laundry so high you can hardly jump over it, but he's afraid to send it out for fear they won't know how to keep his stuff together in the laundry. The club pays for our laundry and I'm one guy that saved up some during the winter to have it done here.

MIAMI MUTUELS

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(Special.)—The mutuels on the seven races at the Hialeah race track yesterday paid a total of $233.00.

Harry Votel Rolls Second 300 Score At Tenpins

Harry Votel, of East Pittsburgh, has just rolled his second perfect score of 300 in tenpins. He turned it in yesterday on his own alleys, where he registered his first 300 hit only a month ago, after many years of trying.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 28.—The coveted perfect score in duckpins was made by John Paulick, Monongahela, who yesterday rolled 300 in a match with friends. He has recently made scores of 268, 267 and 278.

GENE VA BEATS ALLEGHENY

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 28.—After trailing 18-10 for the first half, Geneva College staged a comeback to win from Allegheny College, 34-28, here last night. Allegheny was greatly weakened by lonsing Berger on personal fouls early in the second half and Denison about midway in the last session.

GROVERS TOP CARROLL

GROVE CITY, Pa., Feb. 28.—Grove City had little trouble winning from John Carroll in a slow, ragged game here last night. The Cleveland team was unable to pierce the Crimson defense and the home club recorded a 40-to-11 victory.

BOBCATS DEFEATED

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 28.—Flashing its best form of the season, Marshall College's basketball quintet drubbed the West Virginia Wesleyan basketeers, two-time conqueror of West Virginia, 40 to 22, here last night.

BETHANY BEATEN

BETHANY, Feb. 28. Waynesburg College staged a rally to upset Bethany, 35-33, here last night.

Mafarity	F	Randour
Selway	C	Knepshield
Graff	G	Malarkey
Shaw	G	Tournabene
Scott.		Dunbar.
Tomko	F	Skonezeny
Ferguson	F	Ross
Bache	C	Rushton
Kurtulis	G	Worthington
Kuno	G	Reshenberg

Dueling for second round berths in the annual W. P. I. A. L. title elimination tournament will be resumed tonight with contests slated in both upper and lower brackets. Here in the city, at the Pitt Stadium, Washington, champions of Section XV, and McDonald, leaders in Section XIV, are to clash.

Hank Day

In Greensburg, in a lower bracket affair, the tournament favorite, Johnny Reed's track array from Scott High, of North Braddock, takes on the Section XII representatives, Dunbar Township. Both teams are repeaters from last year. Dunbar was eliminated a year ago in the opening round by Monessen, while Scott dropped out in the second frame, bowing to Duquesne.

TEAMS NEWCOMERS

The teams clashing in the Stadium are newcomers. Washington replaces Waynesburg and McDonald takes the place of Hickory. Both won nine out of 10 sectional games and appear to be evenly matched, more so than are Scott and Dunbar.

Washington has won 11 out of 15 games. McDonald boasts a mark of 16 victories against six defeats, but was beaten in a non-sectional game early in the season by Washington, 22 to 19. Coraopolis, Charleroi, Canonsburg and Burgettstown are other teams sporting wins over McDonald.

Hank Day's team possesses a clever forward in Loucks, who is a fine marksman, an agile ball handler and a generally heady player. He has been a consistent star all season. Knepshield, at center, and Malarkey, at guard, are stars of the McDonald array.

Scott anticipates little difficulty in erasing Dunbar from the list of championship eligibles. The Tomko - Ferguson - Bachel - Kurtulis-Kuno combination developed by Johnny Reed has proven itself to possess exceptional merit.

Dunbar annexed 13 out of 14 sectional tilts, and won 14 out of 17.

Five basketball games, a swimming match, a shoulder-to-shoulder bang-bang match, one wrestling wrangle and one boxing setto comprise the day's collegiate sport card for this particular district.

Of the nine or so events, three will be put on in the city, Carnegie Tech and Penn State matching bullets in a rifle meet this morning. In the afternoon the Skibo varsity and freshmen tankers meet Western Reserve in a dual swimming engagement and in the evening, Duquesne's court varsity faces John Carroll in the Bluff gym.

DUKES FAVORITES

John Carroll's record against district teams hasn't been one to crow over this year. In fact, the Clevelanders have dropped decisions to both the teams they have met, losing on their own court to Thiel the last day of last month and taking one on the kisser from Grove City last night.

The Dukers only played one game this week, losing to West Virginia in an extra-period tussle. If the boys have their weekly bum performance out of their systems, they'll probably win over Carroll tonight with that well-known consummate ease or something.

Panthers Win

Carnegie failed to match Pitt's Panthers in a rather rough-and-tumble contest in the Stadium last night by the narrow and squeaky margin of a single field goal, and lost the return game of the annual home-and-home series, 27 to 25.

Pitt won the first game, played at Tech, 25 to 23, and in taking the second encounter last evening captured its 13th triumph in a row over the Plaid.

It looked for a time as though the Tartans were going to even the series for the year, despite the absence from the lineup of Bob Smith. The Skibos deluged the basket with a regular barrage of shots early in the game and ran up a lead of 10 to 3, two goals by Leonard, both long ones, one by Ed. Stentz, one by Red Fergus and fouls by Stentz and Fergus attending to the little matter of point-getting.

PANTHERS RALLY

After a necessary time out, the Panthers rallied, and lost little or no time in carving away at the Plaid lead, and by half time, the boys were all even. Eddie Baker, whose goal eventually won the ball game, dropped one through just before the half was over to make it all even.

Dr. Carlson's boys went to work in no uncertain fashion as the second period got under way, and led by Baker, scurried away to an 18-13 lead. Baker tossed a long one to make it 18, but Leonard, on a pass from Nease, and Nease, on a pass from Leonard, each scored to cut the Pitt lead to a point. Kowallis dribbled the length of the floor and through the Tech defense for a goal and Albright threw a long one to score another, but then, after Fergus had flipped one from away out, the Panthers put on their stalling act for three minutes, with only eight left to go.

Tech finally came out after 'em, and, lo and behold, after Timmy Lawry had scored on one under the loop and Kowallis had counted a foul to make it 25, what did those pesky Scotties do but tie the old ball game?

They accomplished it as Nease made a foul good and Armentrout dumped in a field goal from the side and Stentz made one from close up.

BAKER'S GOAL WINS

Baker, who had been playing a nice brand of ball, both as a guard and as a sub for Albright at center, was the johnny-on-the-spot, heaving one from a couple yards outside the foul line that plunged through and meant the ball game.

Carnegie functioned very well, the shaken-up lineup appearing to be exceedingly formidable. Pitt penetrated the defense easier than was the case in the first game, but couldn't put 'em away once the ball was worked under the hoop. The Tartan sharpshooters were very much on, making seven of their 10 field goals on long tosses. The lineup:

Pitt—27.		Car. Tech, 25.
Cohen	F	Nease
W. Kowallis	F	Leonard
Albright	C	Stentz
Arture	G	Fergus
Smith	G	Seigel

Score by periods:

Pitt	11	16—27
Tech	11	14—25

Substitutes—Pitt: Lawry, Baker. Tech, Maguire, Armentrout, Fox. Field goals—Kowallis 2, Albright, Lawry 2, Baker 4, Nease, Leonard 4, Stentz 2, Fergus 2, Armentrout. Fouls—Kowallis, 3 out of 6; Arture, 1 out of 2; Smith, 0 out of 2; Lawry, 3 out of 4; Baker, 2 out of 4; Nease, 1 out of 2; Leonard, 0 out of 1; Stentz, 2 out of 3; Fergus, 2 out of 3. Team fouls—Pitt, 9 out of 18. Tech, 7 out of 18.

Time of periods—20 minutes.

Referee—Cal Bolster. Umpire—Dan Brickley.

In a preliminary game, the Pitt freshmen turned the tables on the Carnegie freshmen, securing revenge for the defeat served them at Tech earlier in the season by winning by a score of 28 to 18. The lineup:

Pitt Frosh 27.		Tech Frosh 18.
Hunt	F	Silverman
Pryde	F	Stewart
Ochsenhirt	C	Edelhart
Hughes	G	Hunter
McBride	G	Freedel

Pitt Frosh	3	10	6	8—27
Tech Frosh	3	4	4	7—18

Substitutions—Petranske for Hunter, Shann for Stewart. Field goals—Hunt 2, Pryde 2, Ochsenhirt 4, Hughes, McBride 3, Silverman, Stewart, Edelhart 2, Freedel 2. Fouls—Pitt, 3 out of 10; Tech, 6 out of 11. Referee—Brickley. Umpire—Bolster. Time of quarters—10 minutes.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XLI.

The day Tex Rickard made the Carpentier and Dempsey match saw Tex pulling one of his smartest tricks on the newspaper boys. When the articles were signed, Carpentier and Manager Descamps were present, but Kearns had not brought along Dempsey. The photographers wanted the pair together, but Rickard wouldn't have it. He knew better, and I'll tell you why. Carpentier was no larger in comparison with Dempsey than Jack had been with Willard, and it would have been a fatal thing to have had them photographed together.

Georges Carpentier

Just the same, Kearns, not to be outdone, sent a hurried message to his hotel to get Dempsey. Tex didn't know about this until Jack was on his way to Brady's office.

Then Tex pulled his stunt. He buzzed Carpentier and Descamps and told Carpentier to sit up on top of a table when Dempsey came in, and, under no circumstances, to stand beside Dempsey.

"If you do that, these newspaper fellows will see the difference in their sizes and they will have their hammers out. Just make yourself look as large as possible, Georges, without getting up when Dempsey comes in."

JACK AND GEORGES MEET

Dempsey probably doesn't know to this minute why Carpentier, always gallant, didn't arise when the champion walked into the room. Jack must have been doing a little prepping himself, so far as goat-getting is concerned. He wore a three days' beard when he came in to greet Carpentier, and I've never seen a more menacing individual than Jack as he tripped lightly through the door and walked up to where Georges was sitting, swinging his legs to and fro under the table.

Dempsey grabbed the Orchid Man's hand in a vice-like grip, and Carpentier, looking Jack right in the eye, said:

"You've got a million dollar smile, Chack."

"You've got a pretty good smile yourself," answered Dempsey, blushing through his whiskers.

And so the principals in the "Battle of the Century" met.

It was about this time that Rickard announced he was going to go it alone, without the aid of Brady and Cochran.

COCHRAN PULLS OUT

These two couldn't see that guarantee at all. They wanted no part of such a risk. Cochran quickly released Carpentier from his agreement to box for the English promoter. It was a generous gesture, but Cochran was looking to the future. If Carpentier could whip Dempsey, Georges would be duty-bound to work for Cochran in England and the latter figured he would make more money in the long run by being patient. Of course, that never was to be, for Dempsey still was champion when it was all over.

When Rickard told Carpentier to avoid standing up alongside Dempsey, he knew he was blocking an optical comparison of the two men. These writers have quick eyes and would have made much of the disparity in the sizes of the men had Georges tried to measure up with Jack when they casually shook hands.

None of them noticed that Carpentier had remained atop the table. That was the last time Dempsey and Carpentier were seen together up to the day they weighed in for the battle. Then it was too late. There was more than a million in the box office by this time and Tex didn't care whether school kept or not.

Tex turned Carpentier's training camp into a German fort before he was through with it. He had barbed wire entanglements strung around the big, private estate at Manhasset, where the brilliant Frenchman prepared himself for the struggle. Many a story came out of that fact. Some writers even refused to buck the wires and wrote outlaw yarns about the training seen through the barbed-wire barriers. The mob didn't get in at all. Special writers had to use all of their pull to get into the camp. They made Carpentier a gorgeous mystery, and the result was reams and reams of publicity.

BILLY BRADY FOOLED

Rickard delighted in all of this and carried out the same idea when Dempsey and Tunney were preparing for their two famous battles.

Billy Brady was certain Tex had gone off his lucky stride when Rickard made the astounding $500,000 bid for the fight. Brady took one of his newspaper friends aside and said:

"The man is loco. The fight doesn't rate that kind of dough. You'll see Tex Rickard ruined before this is over."

The day of the fight with 100,000 persons present and $1,625,580 in the house, Brady stood spellbound, drinking in the spectacle before his eyes. He rubbed his chin after a while and said:

"I guess I'm getting old."

Rickard knew he had a winner, but also I know that he missed his guess by more than one-half. Three months before the fight, I sat talking to him about the coming bout. He had definitely decided to build his Boyles Thirty Acres arena to seat 50,000. There never had been that many persons at a fight and Tex was sure he could cut down on his lumber bills if he built an arena calling for 50,000 capacity.

'BATTLE OF THE CENTURY'

I argued that he surely would attract close to 100,000 persons. Tex thought I was hitting too high.

"How much do you think the fight is going to draw?" I asked him.

"My idea is that she'll draw $700,000. Surely not more than $750,000. But money isn't the object back of this venture so far as I am concerned. I don't want to make a cent on it. All I want is the glory of putting it over—being behind the 'Battle of the Century.'"

That title, which I hung on his great attraction, pleased Tex more than anything I ever wrote for him. He knew he had a classic from the beginning, but, with all of his amazing vision, he did not dream that the gate receipts would go over the million mark for the first time in the history of boxing. Actually Tex didn't know what he had.

After that extraordinary pot of gold had been counted, Rickard never was satisfied with anything under a million gate.

TEX NEAR HIS DREAM

He died always hoping for the "three million dollar gate" of his dreams. He hit close when Tunney retained his title in Chicago.

Tex didn't miss the mark far. The paid attendance was 135,000 and the take footed up to $2,658,660, figures that must have made Billy Brady mumble:

"Now I KNOW I'm old."

JACKETS PLAY LONDON HERE

the locals finished "out on their feet." The fact that they outplayed Windsor during 60 of the 70-minute fight only to lose didn't help their morale any, either.

LAST LONDON APPEARANCE

For the benefit of those who prefer an optimistic view, it might be said that the fact that the Jackets DID outplay Windsor doesn't bode anything but evil for London. The team that outplays its rival generally wins. The locals outplayed the Tecumsehs in previous engagements here, and they probably will find it within their power to do so again.

A capacity crowd witnessed the Thursday night skirmish, and another overflow throng probably will be out to bid the Tecumsehs farewell. The probable lineup:

Pittsburgh.		London.
Cox	G	Stuart
Fraser	D	Loughlin
Reise	D	Holway
Bodden	C	Huard
McCurry	W	Groh
Gregg	W	Quennevelle

Spares—Pittsburgh: Fields, Ouellette, McGuire, White, Halliday, McIntyre, Berlett, Proguicki. London: Hicks, Neville, Reinikka, Pettinger, Elliott, Schneider.

PANKA STOPPED BY M'FOWLER IN SIXTH

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two substitute boxers stole the show by scoring knockouts in the main bout and semi-final at the Moose Temple last night. In fact, there were three knockouts in all on the four-bout card and the customers went home early.

The big upset of the dope occurred in the scheduled 10-round main bout, which saw George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, go down to his third successive knockout defeat, at the fists of Ike McFowler, Negro veteran, of Johnstown, in the sixth round. Recently, Panka, once an exceptionally bright prospect, was stopped by Emmett Rocco and then K. O. Christner, in bouts at Motor Square Garden, after having previously put up a brilliant battle against Tom Heeney at the Meyers Bowl last summer.

WINNER BOXES CRAFTILY

McFowler taking the bout on a few days' notice when Umberto Arce, of Porto Rico, suffered an injured hand while training to meet Panka, fought a crafty, methodical scrap to win. He was in a shell throughout the first three rounds, in which he circled about the ring, forcing Panka to do all of the forcing, while he himself was content to punch away to the body with short jolting blows in the clinches.

Then the tide turned. Panka tired from his efforts and the action slowed down to such an extent that the crowd began to set up a clamor for more and better mixing. This was McFowler's cue to step out, and he did, turning in his first winning round by taking the offensive. He repeated in the next round, mixing his punches to the body and head.

The sixth round lasted only 54 seconds and saw Panka on the floor twice. They started off mixing, and a short right uppercut to the jaw dropped George near midring. He was dazed and began to get up at the count of three, but was signaled by the man in his corner to take a full nine-second rest. When he arose, he tore into McFowler, slugging wildly, and was wide open for a series of rights that had him out on his feet. A final right dropped him on his back and he took the full count rolling about.

BECKER KNOCKED OUT

Panka scaled 191¾ pounds and McFowler 188. It was the second knockout victory of the week for McFowler, who stopped Gene Baker, an old rival, in five rounds at Johnstown last Monday. He was trained down much better than when he fought at Hickey Park, Millvale, last summer and appeared to be in good condition.

The other sub to come through was light-haired Jimmy Taylor, Cleveland middleweight, who took Mickey Fedor's place on less than a day's notice when Mickey reported with a cut lip, and knocked down Al Becker, of Sheraden, four times, twice in the second round, the bell saving him at the count of eight after he already had been down for nine, and twice more in the third before Referee Al Grayber intervened, with Al helpless. Taylor, a good boxer, also was too straight a puncher for Becker, who unfortunately appears unable to stand up under a hard punch on the jaw. Becker weighed 157¾ pounds and Taylor 159½.

HEBNER TURNS TABLES

Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, 137½, evened his score with Harry Fine, of the Hill, 139½, in the six-round second bout for the decision Fine won over him in the same ring a week before. After being rushed off his feet by Fine's opening attack in the first round, Hebner got into his stride and won away off by himself. He handed Fine both a boxing and punching lesson.

Marty Gornick, of McKeesport, 138¼, with his mother looking on, knocked Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, 136, cold in 1 minute 49 seconds of the opening round. Portland was forcing the fight when he ran into a right to the jaw that dropped him heavily. The back of his head struck the floor of the ring and his seconds and commission officials had difficulty reviving him. In his last previous appearance in the Moose Temple, Portland knocked out Frankie Fortland in the same round.

Gornick's opponent was Bob Cranshaw, the young Negro, who died from the effects of a broken jaw he suffered.

Frank Brown and Jock Simco were the judges and Tommy Grant and A. C. Couch the timers, with Ray Eberle doing the announcing and Dr. M. R. Goldman serving as the commission physician.

Between Rounds

Tony Herrera is tentatively matched for the Chicago Coliseum next Friday night and Madison Square Garden, New York, the following Friday, which amounts to getting somewhere in the Reisel scheme of things.

Bert Connors, of Detroit, former manager of Johnny Mellow, now is handling Manuel Quintero, the southpaw lightweight, of Miami.

Three Negro fighters are on the Motor Square card next Tuesday. They are Tiger Joe Randall, who meets Jimmy McGaw in the semi-final; Jack Tracey, who opposes Billy Flanagan in the second bout, and Sammy Burns, who faces Steve Smith in the opener. Midget Wolfgirl, the flyweight champion, is due in town to-morrow but has to round up-hill with Wing Davies.

Elmer (Slim) McClelland, of Detroit, has been named to referee the Primo Carnera-Jim Maloney bout at Miami next Thursday night. He alone will decide the winner if the bout goes the limit, no judges being appointed.

Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight champion who was talked into retiring some time ago, is all set to do a comeback. He scaled 175 pounds for an exhibition yesterday afternoon. Although he is reported to be without finance, the Pauline "terminator" cannot cure himself of his yen for the resin bag.

Maxie Rosenbloom buxes Marty Gallagher, Jimmy Braddock meets Jack Roper, Jack Dorval fancies with Primo Selah El Din and Walter Cobb takes on George Hoffman in preliminaries to the Carnera-Maloney thing.

Carl Cocke, of Uniontown, scrapping demigod swamper of the Arroyo Municipal Stadium, Los Angeles, who made a successful debut as a professional by stopping Johnny Wagner in two rounds, subsequently the other night underwent the management of Jack London and is ready to take on any of the 180-pound era. He is a good puncher.

FIRST GENERAL DRILL SLATED TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 28.—Although he has his holdout worries together with his concern over the condition of Paul Waner, Manager Ens, of the Pirates, was in his customary jubilant mood as he gathered his athletes together for the daily workout at the big ball orchard.

Ens plans the same long session which has prevailed on most of the other days of the week. The drill is slated to end about 12:30, after which the players will change clothes and partake of luncheon before repairing to the little station, where they will greet the little party that makes up the rear guard of the Buccos.

Bill Hinchman is slated to bring his travelers to the camp about 2 o'clock this afternoon. There will be no workout for the new arrivals, but the skipper plans to have his first general practice of the season tomorrow.

As late as this morning, the Pirate boss had no news on Paul Waner, who, so far as the Pirate camp knows, still is in the St. Louis hospital.

Ens plans to inaugurate the long batting drills just as soon as the second squad gets onto the ball lot.

"We're going to have a lot of hitting here," said Jewel. "We have a flock of pitchers ready to put something on the ball, and they will not be making their slants soft for the regulars. Practice on eased-up pitching doesn't do a batter any particular good. Of course, the first-string pitchers will not be serving their mid-summer stuff at this time, but the kids are almost ready to bear down and that is exactly what they will be doing in the course of the next few days."

Ens is delighted with what has been achieved in the first week. Some of the days brought cold winds, but the sun was out for every practice and there were no ill effects from the cold breezes.

The club doctors are carrying out their chart system on the various players. Each athlete has to be checked up at a regular time. The innovation has made a hit with the manager and the players.

Let Bobby Jones Tell It!

Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., was not always the effective, consistent golfer he is today. For years he, too, had to plug away at the game before he won his first championship. He came close many times but seemed to always fall just short of championships. In attempting to overcome these few faults that kept the coveted laurel wreath of victory from his grasp Bobby learned many things about overcoming the idiosyncracies in one's game. He tells you about these faults and how he remedied them in a series of articles starting tomorrow in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Star and duffer alike can profit by Bobby's experiences.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
"Public Improvements Promote Progress"

The new Boston Bridge, now under construction, crosses the Youghiogheny River at the village of Boston in Elizabeth Township. It will replace a narrow obsolete structure built in 1892 and will eliminate a dangerous railroad grade crossing.

The new structure will be steel cantilever type and the total length of bridge and approaches is 2,378 feet. The roadway will be 30 feet wide and there will be two 8-foot sidewalks.

Funds to the amount of $900,000 were approved for this structure in the 1928 Peoples Bond issue.

OFFICE RENTAL SHOWS GAIN HERE

Favorable Situation Now Indication of Move Away From Trade Depression

If office space, occupied and unoccupied, is any criterion of business conditions, and most economists agree it is, then Pittsburgh has taken a definite step away from the depression the country is experiencing.

This conclusion is reached on an analysis by J. R. Critchfield manager of the Law and Finance Building, of the periodic statistical data just issued by the Building Owners and Managers Association of Pittsburgh. The report as of January 1 showed average vacancy of 10.8 per cent, a fractional decrease over the previous report.

SPACE ADDED

For a period of approximately 15 years prior to 1927 Mr. Critchfield pointed out, there were no new office buildings erected in Pittsburgh. Beginning with 1927 there was a sort of epidemic of new buildings, among them the Clark Investment, Plaza, Law and Finance, Grant and Koppers, with the Gulf just a little in the offing. This group of new buildings represents upwards of 1,500,000 square feet of new and modern office space.

All this space came into the market almost at the same time. Until this group of new buildings was thrown open, office space was at a great premium. The small tenant was absolutely at the mercy of the large tenant, and frequently the large tenant was seriously handicapped in his expansion program for lack of suitable office space.

AVERAGE 10.8 PER CENT

The present situation, while quite favorable to the tenant particularly as compared with a few years ago, is not at all bad for the building owner. The building manager with less than 10 or 12 per cent of his building vacant is in no position to take care of the normal expansion of growing tenants, and is apt to have some difficulty providing suitable accommodations for new enterprises.

The average vacancy in Pittsburgh office buildings, 10.8 per cent, is well under the average in the country at large, and it is not unreasonable to assume that but for the general business depression Pittsburgh would even now be confronted with an acute demand for additional first-class office space.

REFRIGERATOR SALES GAIN

March 3,500 General Electric refrigerator dealers and salesmen of the Ochiltree Electric Company will meet in the auditorium of the Y. M. H. A. for their annual convention. Entire business session of this meeting will be conducted by factory representatives from the refrigeration department of the General Electric Company.

Mr. Ochiltree, president of the Ochiltree Electric Company, said:

"We believe 1931 will be the largest for us in the history of the industry. Although we showed a large increase in 1930 over 1929 business, we anticipate an even larger increase for 1931. During the last six weeks our sales have increased to an appreciable degre which is further evident that the people in Pittsburgh and its vicinity have come to realize more and more the value of electric refrigeration."

AUTOMOTIVE EFFORTS IN 1868

By J. H. VAN DEVENTER

With the exception of the steam engine and a few other basic types of machinery, practically everything mechanical and electrical that we use today in industry and the home have been invented during the lifetime of those now 75 years of age. Those who believe that science and invention have gone the limit should reflect on this. Undoubtedly the astonishing wonders of invention are still to come.

Today we have radio, human flight, machines that perform complicated mathematical calculations, motor cars that attain a speed of four miles a minute, photo electric tubes that answer the summons of a beam of light just as the genii obeyed the summons of Aladdin's lamp. Just a few of the indicators of future progress.

In 1868, less than 75 years ago, newspapers and other publications were discussing the "Steam Man," the wonderful invention of a Newark, N. J., machinist.

Today we smile at the crudity of ideas that were seriously considered a lifetime ago. Instead of our roads and streets being occupied by thousands of two-legged "steam men" they are given over to millions of four-wheeled "gas buggies."

During the coming lifetime, our present-day automobiles may become as out of date as the steam man is today. Our atomic power plants of the future may be refueled from an eyedropper, or perhaps fuelless motors will tap power carried by the ether waves.

Man's progress will continue as long as ideas can be fished out of the inexhaustible sea of thought. The "good old days" cannot hold a candle to the better ones coming.

Columbia Stockholders Helped by Growth

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

EXPANSION OF THE COLUMBIA Gas system in the past has proved profitable for stockholders due to the issuance of subscription rights at quite frequent intervals. With the restoration of better stock market conditions it is quite likely that the company will continue to do a large share of its financing in this manner.

In June, 1927, stockholders were offered rights to subscribe for one new share at $60 for each eight shares held. This was on the old stock which was split on a 2½ for 1 basis in April, 1929. In June, 1929, rights to buy one new share for every 10 held were offered at $24 a share. This was followed by a 25 per cent stock dividend in March, 1930. In June, 1930, the distribution of the stock of Columbia Oil and Gasoline took place.

Previous to the split in 1929 the old stock was on a $5 annual basis. The new stock was placed on a $2 basis which was equivalent to the old rate. The 25 per cent stock dividend a year ago increased the return to stockholders since the $2 rate was continued on the increased capitalization.

Dividend Not Earned

WHILE EARNINGS OF $1.76 a share for 1930 did not cover common dividend requirements, the present rate is considered safe due to the fact that a share of the extensions to the system may be expected to expand earnings in the present year.

The common dividend requirements were earned in the fourth quarter of 1930 when net amounted to 53 cents a share. The least satisfactory quarter of the year was the third when net was only 6 cents a share. The second quarter of last year showed 38 cents a share while 82 cents a share was earned in the first quarter.

The first quarter of the year is usually a profitable one in the gas business. The low rate of industrial consumption will be an unfavorable factor this year but results equal to or better than those of the final three months of last year may be expected.

Morgan Interest

IN THE PUBLIC UTILITY field, the interests controlling companies and their affiliations with other systems have been important factors in judging future prospects and the possibilities of forming mergers or operating alliances.

The United Corporation holds about one-fourth of the common stock of Columbia Gas. Officers of the company also are large stockholders so that it is not clear whether or not the ownership of this block of stock represents practical control. It seems quite probable that United Corporation is the dominant factor in Columbia's affairs.

The control of United Corporation is divided between J. P. Morgan & Co., Drexel & Co., and Bonbright & Co., Inc. This leaves no doubt about the strength of banking connections. The United Corporation, through its other holdings, is a major factor in the public utility situation.

Other Affiliations

OFFICIALS OF COLUMBIA GAS also are active in the management of two other gas organizations which are particularly interesting to Pittsburgh investors. These are Lone Star Gas and Western Public Service.

While there seems to be no intention at present of a merger with Columbia, the close connection of the managements makes such a step a possibility at some time in the future if Columbia's growth should make the consolidation of the systems desirable.

DISCUSSES LIFE INSURANCE

TORONTO Feb. 28.—Much of the increase in the sale of life insurance in the United States during the past year has been due to the emphasis of the investment factors by salesmen, Holgar J. Johnson, president of the Pittsburgh Underwriters' Association and general agent for the Penn Mutual Life at Pittsburgh, told members of the life underwriters of Toronto at a luncheon here yesterday.

He stated that this has been particularly true during the recent falling securities market and demonstrated that the reserve values of having insurance contracts often have been the only resources available to policy holders at times of financial stringency.

RECORD YEAR FOR SUN LIFE

The diamond jubilee of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is being celebrated this year. The company has just announced that despite the period of business depression existing during 1930 the Sun company sold more life insurance in 1930 than in any other year during the company's history.

Total business in force of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada totaled $2,863,701,000 at the end of 1930. This was an increase of $462,464,000 over 1929. Total new insurance written in 1930 amounted to $705,878,000.

One of the interesting features of the company's business is the fact that their investments are in high-grade stocks. This is unusual for such a large insurance investment, the company states, because of the Canadian Insurance Commission ruling which requires companies owning stocks to value them on the last day of the year, at a time when stock prices are at their lowest level. R. H. Finger has been with this company for 12 years. During the last three and one-half years he has been branch manager in Pittsburgh.

STEEL OUTPUT TO SHOW GAIN

Marked Upturn in March Production Assured, Demand to Increase

By B. E. V. LUTY.

While there has been little farther increase in the rate of steel production in the last couple of weeks, orders in general have undergone a substantial increase in the last week or so and a marked increase in steel production next month is regarded as assured. This would be by the book as precedents show that the upward seasonal swing is greater in March than in February. Last month's increase over December was unusually large.

In three recent years which may be selected as typical of natural seasonal swing the daily rate of steel ingot production averaged increases of one per cent in February over January and over 4 per cent in March over February. This year the February gain is several per cent and next month may be forecast at 5 to 10 per cent gain over this month. The January rate was about 29,000,000 tons a year and the increases mentioned would indicate a rate of 32,000,000 to 33,000,000 tons in March. Capacity at the last ascertainment was 63,000,000 tons, as of December 31, 1929, and present capacity is a couple million tons or so greater.

DISTRIBUTION WIDE

A common view in the trade is that steel demand will increase more or less continuously throughout the year, not following its usual course of reaching a peak in March and then tapering off to July. Some summer lull would haraly be avoided, but the peak might come in May or June. While increases of a few per cent per month indicate progress it would require many such increases to give the steel industry a really fair operating rate.

The wide distribution of steel demand is more satisfactory than the sum total of tonnage. Counting out the large consuming industries there is left a proportion of steel much higher than usual going to the smaller consuming industries, highly diversified in character, indicating more general business activity in the country than is shown by such lines as freight cars, farm implements and automobiles.

MOTORS BUYING

It is quite true that the automobile industry is recording substantial gains in point of percentage, but it started from such a low point that these percentage gains leave it still with prospects of a rate in March low by comparison with other years. Automobile production made the curious showing of being lowest in November instead of the usual December. December brought a 14 per cent increase and the official report for January issued this week shows a 10 per cent increase over December, the preliminary report having indicated 14 per cent increase.

Automobile trade buying of steel has increased sharply in the last 10 days and is the heaviest since September or possibly August. The comparison means little, however, as in the intervening time the steel industry has regarded the automobile trade as one of the poorest of its customers. In November it bought almost nothing, liquidating stocks of steel and parts and buying chiefly to round out.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

Big Company on Full Time For 7,500 Men

By B. C. FORBES

DAYTON, O., Feb. 28.

I HAVE just been through a plant which is teeming with activity, the largest one-story factory in the world, Frigidaire.

Mr. Forbes

This company, a unit of General Motors, has 7,200 people on its payroll, all working full time.

President E. G. Biechler tells me that 300 additional workers will be engaged next week.

Certain departments are operating 24 hours a day.

IN PREPARATION for an entirely new line of refrigerators, inventories have been allowed to dwindle extraordinarily throughout the country. The brand new machines, which are finished inside and out in porcelain on steel, are being shipped the moment they come from the production tracks.

Output for March will be 26 per cent above February.

A SERIES of 45 dealer meetings throughout the United States has just been concluded, and Mr. Biechler tells me that, without exception, these meetings have been characterized by optimism. He observed:

"Reports from these meetings indicate a decided upturn in our business during the coming months."

THE PLANT I visited, at Moraine, a few miles from Dayton, is nearly a mile long. I walked from end to end of one building which is 2400 feet long and 500 feet wide. Here you see eight continuous production lines in operation, served by three miles of conveyors, a la motor factories.

It was fascinating to start with the raw material and follow the process of fashioning it into the finished product. Did you know that the porcelain is applied to steel with a "gun," that is to say, it is reduced to liquid form and then sprayed onto the steel, with great force, through a little instrument which looks for all the world like a pistol.

Before the surfaces of the sheets are capable of receiving the porcelain, they are subjected to an elaborate series of cleaning baths. Then after the first coat of porcelain, the sheets slowly move through furnaces heated to some terrific cooling plant contains various box-type ovens. Each machine moves through furnaces, each machine is in a room kept at a temperature and there put through 26 separate baths, to make sure the porcelain reaches the house-to-house in perfect condition. Only 20 to an hour, an 1,400 machines at one time.

THE PLANT is showing its confidence in the general outlook by the most ambitious program in its history. Richler said:

"That the bottom of the valley has been reached and that from now on it should be improvement. We are not looking for that it may be that the will be very gradual we believe it would be better that we are confident company which has the period of quiet- will improve its processes, a better product, to its selling force, prepare in every other go after business in- ly and courageously, to earn results."

J. TOMPERT, president Dayton Clearing House ation and the Winters nal Bank and Trust Com- give me this encouraging ment:

"The banks of Dayton are a strong and healthy con- tion and are growing with the business life of the city. There is a feeling of optimism that is shared by the entire bank directorate of Dayton. With the return of business to a more normal basis, we believe the city is prepared to feel the effects as quickly as any other industrial community of our wide and diversified industrial character."

FIRM EXPANDS FLOOR SPACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—International Business Machines Corporation has drawn plans for a four-story addition to its Endicott (N. Y.) plant, which will add 12,000 square feet to the floor space available for manufacturing purposes. The plant manufactures electric tabulating and accounting machines, electric time recording system and automatic heavy duty and inventory scales.

This is the second increase in floor space at the Endicott plant, an addition of nearly 60,000 square feet having been completed within the last two months.

HUBERT SETS TRANSFER RECORD

Furniture Moved From Sewickley Mansion to New York in 36 Hours

What is believed to constitute a record for rapid handling and transfer of household goods has just been established by a Pittsburgh concern.

Late Monday afternoon the agent for a large estate in Sewickley Heights laid before George J. Hubert, president of the Hubert Transfer and Storage Company, 1009 Bidwell street, a commission that seemed impossible of fulfillment. The contents of the palatial home of a pioneer Sewickley family must be moved to New York at once. They must be there by Wednesday—a matter of 36 hours.

TRIP MADE

Mr. Hubert promised to do his best. Before daybreak the next morning eight large vans drew up at the mansion. By 10 o'clock everything had been removed from the mansion and safely packed in the vans—8 full loads—and the vans were rolling eastward. Two dependable men were assigned to each van, one to relieve the other at the wheel and, in case of breakdown, one to remain with the van and guard its contents while the other should seek the nearest repair station.

The fleet of eight trucks made the difficult trip over the mountains without mishap and, 20 hours from the time they left Sewickley Heights—at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning—they drew up before the new home of the owner of the furniture. Two hours later the last article of furniture had been unloaded and the fleet of vans were ready to start the return trip to Pittsburgh.

FIREPROOF PLANT

In the 20 years that he has been engaged in the transfer and storage business—the last 12 years in his present location—Mr. Hubert has built up a large and dependable business, based principally upon personal service and integrity. He has a modern fireproof plant containing 25,000 square feet of storage space which can accommodate the household effects of 500 average families and he operates a fleet of eight vans for both local and long-distance hauling.

Mr. Hubert is a member of the National Warehousemen's Association and his concern is associated with the Allied Van Lines, Inc., which covers the entire United States and Canada.

Deserted Unjustly, Wife Says in Suit

Mrs. Sarah Kuhn Demmler, of 5809 Howe street, testified that her husband, Frederick E. Demmler, employed by the Hope Natural Gas Company, told her he was going to leave her, and three days later packed up and left. Her suit for a divorce on the grounds of desertion was heard before Judge Joseph Stadtfeld in Common Pleas Court. They were married November 5, 1920, and parted June 4, 1927, and have one child. Mrs. Demmler said they had frequent arguments about financial affairs and other matters, but that he left without justification.

DIPLOMAT SEES EXPORT GAINS

Pittsburgh's export trade with Latin-American nations will not be hurt by revolutions and recent depressions, Wallace Thompson, author and diplomat, told the foreign trade council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

These nations are rich in natural resources and will recover from reverses quickly, Thompson said. Most of the revolutions have been protests of progressive people against old political rulers who have been retarding business and economic development, he declared.

Thompson said stabilization, in most nations where there have been revolutions, will be an actuality within a year. Thompson, regarded as an authority on South America, is editor of the Spanish engineering publication, "Ingeneira Internacional." He was introduced by A. M. Vance, chairman of the chamber's council.

PLATE GLASS DEMAND UP

The improvement since early in the month in demand for plate glass was being maintained this week, according to American Glass Review. In other branches of the flat glass industry, comparatively little change was evidenced in marketing trends.

During the past month, and more particularly the latter half, orders for plate glass have been larger both in number and size, reflecting a rather substantial revival of activities in the automobile industry. Demand on the part of the mirror manufacturers, as well as the jobbing trade, continues in light volume, however, and is well below the seasonal normal.

Everything considered, conditions in this section of the market are relatively better than in other branches of the flat glass industry. The market is holding firm, manufacturers' warehouse stocks are far from excessive, and the current output is understood to be about in line with trade requirements.

CAMBRIA RAIDS, NET SIX STILLS

State police and prohibition agents yesterday raided seven dwellings in Hastings, Cambria County, and seized six stills and a large quantity of moonshine.

The largest seizure, a 150-gallon still, found in the home of Sam Pagano, 28, of Third avenue, resulted in his arrest, agents reported. Stills also were reported confiscated in the homes of John Bobal, 38; Stanley Parzatka, 47, of Hoover street, and Robert Helrick, 40. A dwelling in Third avenue and another in Hastings road, also were visited by the raiders and warrants issued for the tenants.

Sinclair Planning Second Large Pipe Line

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation is contemplating construction of a crude oil pipe line from Rusk County, East Texas, to a point in Oklahoma, where it can tie-in with the company's present line from Oklahoma City pool to Coffeyville, Kansas. The inquiry which the company has put out for 35,000 tons of steel pipe 12 inches in diameter, is calculated to provide for a line 265 miles long.

Sinclair also has another pipe line project in contemplation, dependent upon progress of the Rusk County development. This line would extend from the East Texarka area to the company's refinery and terminal at Houston.

Output Expanded By Cash Register

DAYTON, Feb. 28.—Effective March 1, plants of National Cash Register will go on a four-day-a-week operating schedule, supplanting the present three-day rate.

Improvement in general business and necessity to build up an inventory for the spring sales campaign are causes of the increased rate.

FIRM MARKETS NEW MODEL

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The home continues to be the largest user of portable typewriters, Philip D. Wagoner, president of Underwood Elliott Fisher Company, declared in announcing a new model Underwood portable typewriter. The machine has been under development and test for more than a year.

Designed originally for traveling salesmen, the portable typewriter now finds its largest use in homes, with students and travelers the next larger class of users, according to Mr. Wagoner. It is estimated that approximately two out of every five typewriters now sold are portables.

The company's plant at Bridgeport, Conn., is running full time on the production of the new portable, which is being distributed by agents, dealers and factory branches in 77 countries throughout the world.

Real Estate

A. M. Levine has deeded to C. Chapman a lot fronting 30 feet on Beechwood boulevard, near Lilac street, and extending back 137 feet. The purchaser plans to erect a home on the property in spring. The deal was made through the offices of the United States Realty Company, downtown brokers, represented by Maurice Kohner.

Plans have been completed for a three-story apartment building to be erected at Bellefield avenue, Bigelow boulevard and Dithridge street. The building, according to D. A. Crone, architect, will house 30 small but modern apartments and will be known as the Green Briar Apartments. The owner's name has not yet been disclosed.

In his address to the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board next Tuesday at noon in the William Penn Hotel, John D. F. Kennedy, vice president of the Keystone Lumber Company, will explain a system of financing which his company has adopted for home building. Under this plan, according to Kennedy, the owner of a clear lot or purchaser with 25 per cent of the amount of the completed project can have the building operation financed over a term of 15 years with stipulated monthly payments, including insurance, as well as principal and interest payments. His talk will also deal with new methods by which the buyer of a moderate priced house can purchase his home on reasonable terms.

The Suburban Building Company of Bellevue has opened a model home of new English gothic design in West Munroe Circle, North Hills Estate plan, Perry highway. The public may view the new house Saturday or Sunday afternoon and evening.

Applications for building permits follow:

Second Ward—H. J. Kelly, repair fire damage, 2006 Pike street, $2,500.

Eighth Ward—H. G. Tinker, alterations, 212 South Evaline street, $2,000.

Twelfth Ward—A. M. Moro, brick dwelling, 1343 Pointview street, $4,000.

Nineteenth Ward—J. E. Gilderhew, brick dwelling, 1502 Westinghouse avenue, $5,000.

Twentieth Ward—R. M. Deener, brick addition and alterations, 730 Kerr street, $2,500.

Twenty-ninth Ward—W. E. Anget, brick and tile dwelling, 421 Birmingham street, $1,800.

RETAIL TRADE CONTINUES QUIET

Merchants Ordering Only For Filling-In Purposes; Collections Still Slow

There has been no change in the business situation during the week ending today, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Although inquiries in some lines are showing slight improvement, retail trade continues quiet and merchants appear to be buying almost entirely for filling-in purposes.

There is a slight increase in demand for women's wearing apparel, but men's clothing continues to move slowly, and the demand for shoes is light. Hardware lines continue to move rather slowly, while there is a slight improvement in demand for wallpaper and paints.

BUILDING SLOW

Building construction continues materially below the average for several years past and demand for building materials is still slow, although considerable municipal and road work is expected to increase the demand for some lines in the near future. While the demand for automobiles continues moderate, a slight improvement is noted, and accessories appear to be selling in considerable volume.

OIL OUTPUT UP

Crude oil production is showing a moderate increase, although the rate of production is materially lower than a year ago. Production of bituminous coal is at a slightly higher rate than last week but demand continues quiet.

There has been no improvement of consequence in collections and the average continues slow.

REFRIGERATION CLASS ENDS

Diplomas were awarded to a group of electric refrigeration installation and service men on Thursday evening at a banquet held by the Industrial Tech Institute, which specializes in training for this work.

These men were selected as applicable to fill the need for trained men in this new industry. Due to the expanding and constantly increasing growth of the electric refrigeration industry, and increasing number of new companies entering the production and marketing of electric refrigerators, a need has developed for an industrial trade school for training men by theoretical and practical instruction on actual equipment in order for the men to become competent refrigeration experts.

Electric refrigeration is one industry that has enjoyed an increase during the present business depression.

Co-Ordinated Activities, Which Avoid Waste, Held Solution by Dr. R. T. Ely

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—After the depression what?

Richard T. Ely, director of the Institute for Economic Research, seeks to answer this arresting question in his timely new book on "Hard Times—the Way in and the Way Out."

Mr. Rukeyser

An outstanding economic scholar, Dr. Ely, looking into the crystal glass, thus reads the future:

"In the land beyond hard times we find co-ordinated activities which avoid waste of natural resources, including in these natural resources human beings. The coal industry will be organized as a whole; likewise the oil industry, but under efficient public control. We find in agriculture, farm units of the right size. Here we have a world-wide problem. On the whole, farms will be larger in order to carry the overhead of modern machinery. Relatively fewer people will be employed in agriculture as very generally in our extractive industries. Better plans than we have had heretofore will be put into effect to transfer labor from those industries which require a relatively diminishing number of men, to the satisfaction of wants which are now imperfectly satisfied. Here the peacetime army has its great role to play.

"We must expect that we will have in the future hard times. At any rate there is no reason to think that we will so master natural, economic and social forces as to avoid altogether hard times in any future near enough to concern even the youngest among the living."

C. W. Kellogg, president of Engineers Public Service Company, Inc., which, today, reported an increase in net profits in 1930 over 1929, in discussing prospects, told me:

"The outlook for 1931 is, of course, clouded by the uncertainties which surround the business situation.

"I will say, however, that I confidently expect the full year, 1931, to show moderate increases in both gross and net earnings and at least as much balance for the common stock as was shown in 1930, if not more. This is predicted on my belief that a slow upward swing in business activity will begin this spring and be plainly visible during the fall months."

Pilgrim Pushes Cart With 1,000 White Mice

CLARION, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Clarion residents are wondering what a man who said he was a member of the "Silent Brotherhood" planned to do with 1,000 white mice he had on a push-cart when he went through here. The pilgrim said he was going from "Fallstown, near Washington, D. C., to Cleveland." There were kerosene lamps on the push-cart to facilitate night travel.

Lone Star Gas Remains Unchanged as Trading In Main List Shrinks

Trading turned dull in the short week-end session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Lone Star Gas maintained its leadership of the market, but volume of business in this fuel issue dwindled down to a few odd-lot sales for the first hour's turnover. The price remained practically unchanged from yesterday, when the stock sold "ex" the stock dividend of one share for seven.

Industrials were dull also. Blaw Knox showed no change on its initial sale at 28 and there was very little of the stock handled. Copperweld Steel was off 1½ points on the opening at 37.

The list here reflected the mild downturn in New York, where the first hour witnessed a selling wave on which the volume of trading decreased noticeably.

Lawyer Kills Infant Grandchild and Self

EUFAULA, Okla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Frank L. Montgomery, 50, an attorney, took the life of Vol Montgomery, his infant granddaughter, and killed himself.

E. E. Ammons, justice of the peace, called the shooting murder and suicide in a coroner's report. Relatives indicated an unsuccessful marriage of the baby's mother may have caused Montgomery's act. The mother, recently divorced from Byron Shields, was in the Montgomery kitchen when the fatal shots were fired.

Travers Sees Differences In Supposed Wife

CHAPTER XIV.

Her morning's task finished, Mrs. Lorrimer went upstairs and knocked at her son's door. Peter valeted him, expertly, and so she found him dressed, standing idly by his sitting room windows. His rooms were comfortable and pleasant, furnished for a man with sound, good taste, full of sunlight and colors neither too bright nor too subdued. There were really fine etchings on the walls and the bookcases were filled with the books he had loved as a child and a young man.

"Well, Travers?" she asked quietly.

He put out a hand and drew her close to him. He loved her very much. If only something—he could shake off his self-cloud of doubt of himself and uncertainty of both present future and could tell her. He despised himself for a bit of human weakness which had not somehow the strength to rebuild himself into something which would be useful, vital.

"Very well," he answered bitterly, "there's no truth in the with me really going to the fernal dolce-vita."

Discuss Situation

That was true. His health was as good as health can be when is neglected in essentials. His constitution was sound. The physical effects of his crack and unpunished had long since been overcome. But previously he had had, it ate little sleep less. He cared for nothing very much unless it were his mother, and for her at didn't somehow seem to the extent of pulling himself together. He grew a keen with a certain partial enthusiasm.

"Delight!"

"She's out walking Mr. Lorrimer with him enough. She'll be with breakfasted eight. We missed you."

"Does she want to see me?" he asked flatly.

"Well, of course she wants to see you! She was pretty much upset by the events of yesterday," his mother said firmly. "She's a little child of you, Travers. You must overlook that, you'll have to win her back to —friendship, again."

"I'm shy of her, to see you put it," he answered bitterly. "When I saw her sitting there you don't know what it was like. Mother, a great crushing weight lifted from my heart windows in a dark room thrown open to blinding sunlight. But when I saw how she felt of course, I couldn't understand and I made an idiot of myself. I would," he commented coldly. "Mathews explained, naturally, and I suppose I do see her viewpoint thinking me dead and all that forgetting me most nicely. But how well, somehow, I thought I could wait another month, to see her, and then I looked at her and I never wanted to lay eyes on her again."

"Don't be absurd," said Mrs. Lorrimer, speaking with rare sharpness. "The situation exists. It is primarily of your own making. It has to be faced. It can't be run away from. She is Adelbert Sawyer's widow. Delight is a perfectly charming girl and I've come to really care for her in the very brief space of time. I mean that Travers, but the situation in which we all find ourselves is one of extreme difficulty, and delicacy. You can't take us life where you left it many years ago."

She sighed, as if in all events, Lorrimer broke the reading.

"No. Don't blame her in your heart. You never should, Travers. You are not the person she knew during that short leave time in London. Admit that."

Lorrimer nodded.

"I do admit it. That boy's dead," he told her wearily. "Now, if it's to be sure she wants to see me I'll come down-stairs."

"Why don't you go out and look for her?" his mother suggested, trying to control the nervous irritableness of her voice. "She's somewhere on the grounds."

"All right."

He kissed her over him and kissed his cheek briefly.

"I know it's terribly hard for you, Travers," she told him, low.

Looks for Her

Lorrimer after she had left him looked for and found a top coat and cap. He moved mechanically. His heart hammered in his throat. He was realizing that no matter what had been his dream, his hope of infinite love and bewilderment, hours upon hours of speculation, where was she? What had become of her? Did she live or had she incredibly died? Did she still care or had she forgotten? The girl he was going out to meet that sunny, blue-gold day was, as his mother had said, a complete stranger to him. Yet she was his wife!

He went down stairs encountering no one, stopped in the hall to look in the coat closet for a stick and went out.

He walked sometimes, when the burden of his thoughts grew so heavy as to be unendurable, walked abstractedly sometimes alone, sometimes with his mother, about the beautiful place which was familiar to him since childhood. But he walked unseemly. At first, when he returned home he had been physically ill, unable to leave his room. Later, as he recovered, he kept to himself as much as possible. He remembered now, suddenly, the uproarious greeting of a dog he'd had and cared for grown to sedate doghood since his departure but with a tenacious memory of his old playmate remembered his shrinking from the animal, his shattered nerves shrieking against the noisy intrusion upon his silence and solitude. Remembered the way the dog had looked at him, before it had slunk away. Well, Reddie was dead now, but there were other dogs in the kennels. Kept carefully away from the house because their barking and jeering friendliness might disturb him.

He hated himself for it, but he couldn't help it.

But it was at the kennels he found her.

Mary Lou Startled

Coming out of the long stretch of woods finally, she had found herself there, a little dazzled by the full sunlight after the brown-green gloom.

Half a dozen dogs raced about the wide runways, a setter, two Scotties, a cocker with silky, trailing ears, and two police puppies. Mary Lou stopped and pressed herself close to the wire fencing. She spoke coaxingly to the animals and was rewarded by cold noses pushing through the wires to nuzzle her bare hand. If some one were in charge of them, she thought, who would let her take one out for a run. She loved dogs and had had one of her own for many years.

She heard a step behind her; thought it that of the gardener she had seen early in her wanderings or perhaps whoever was looking after the dogs.

"They're darlings," cried Mary Lou, "could—could they come out and speak to me?"

"They are yours to choose from," a voice replied quite quietly.

knew, for, taken by surprise, the color left her face and then returned in a bright crimson flood, burning even her throat and the tips of her little ears.

"Oh, how you startled me!" were the words she spoke to him.

Lorrimer came closer to her and somehow, managed a smile.

"I didn't mean to," he said. "I hope I'm all done with startling you. You must forgive me, for yesterday, I—"

"Please," said Mary Lou, low. "It was as much my fault as yours."

Her voice was not as he remembered it all these years. It was lower, deeper, a little enchantingly, husky. But memory plays us strange tricks and time had passed.

He leaned against the high fencing of the kennels and whipped his slender walking stick across the short grass.

"We won't talk about it—now," he said. "I just want you to know that I do understand. I understand your—reticence and the complete shock it all must have been to you. If—you had thought of me at all of late years it was not as I appeared to you, suddenly. Suppose we forget that, for a time. I make no claim on you, Delight. I ask nothing of you but your confidence and, if you can give it to me, your friendship."

She seemed so little, suddenly so entirely helpless, that he felt amazingly a curious sense of tender protectiveness of power, almost. Unconsciously his stooped shoulders straightened and for a moment he looked like a man who voluntarily assumes a task, who sets himself a goal.

She was smaller than he remembered her, prettier, even, if that were possible. He didn't question her age. He knew, of course, that she was nearly of an age with himself, must be. But it didn't occur to him as unusual that time seemed to have stood still for her, as far as appearances went. But he did find, with a shock of astonishment, that she was somehow different, and, now that he saw her again, divorced from the cataclysmic amazement of yesterday, really a stranger, some one other than the girl of his obstinate, sick memory. Somehow it made it both harder and easier.

Promises Friendship

He held out his hand.

"Friends—Delight?" he asked her, and the smile was no longer managed but authentic. His eyes shone with excitement, with anxiety, and there was color in the sallow, lean cheeks.

Mary Lou put her hand into his. The curtain was up, the prologue finished, the play itself was on.

And—

"Friends," she promised gravely.

"Say 'Lorry,'" he begged her, still holding that warm, vibrant little hand in his own. "You—used to!"

Mary Lou thanked her lucky stars for this piece of information. And her realization of her good fortune brought stars to her eyes and curves to her red mouth.

"Lorry—" she said, obediently.

There was no withdrawal possible now. She had made her bargain and sealed it with a handclasp.

DAILY TRUE STORY— 'Ruby'

"I'm going to be married," Elsa said.

She had driven over to Laxon Park to have tea with her Aunt Sabrina Marston. They were out on the west terrace, where the lawn sloped half a mile down to the highway and gave a view through the shrubbery of the valley and river.

Miss Sabrina Marston, aged 50, dropped her teaspoon with a clatter and stared at Elsa.

"Elsa Marston you are trying to be funny!"

"Funny? What is funny about getting married? I'm 22, and when I walk down street children don't whimper with fear and run away from me."

"There's nothing funny in being married—quite the reverse, and it's a curse not a blessing, that you are good looking."

"Thank you."

"Look here, you've had measles and you owned a dog that bit you. You've been thrown from a horse, you broke your leg and you also was poisoned by ptomaines, and it does seem to me that you don't need to get married—you've had your share of trouble and misery and suffering as it is."

Unkind Words

"So that's your idea of marriage, is it, aunty?"

"Speaking mildly, it is. I hate men! I've always hated men, all men."

"Fortunately for you, your mother didn't feel that way."

"But you don't have to marry. Good lands, you've got all the money you can use and my money is coming to you. You don't need a man to support you. There's just a faint little bit of reason for a poor girl to marry. She thinks she will be better off, but I cannot imagine—"

"I suppose," her aunt went on, "that you'll give up all of your freedom and pleasures in life and tie yourself down and have a lot of children."

"What the gods give—"

"Fiddlesticks. I can't bear children!"

"To quote Mrs. Partington, perhaps if you could you would like them better!"

Sabrina Marson turned quite red.

"That was unkind," she said. "How do you know? I never married."

"No more unkind than saying that all men are worthless and deceivers and so on and on—you don't know my Dell."

"Know your what?"

"Dell Adelbert Sawyer. He is the man I am going to marry."

"What Sawyer—the Maj. Jerome Sawyers family?"

"He is a grandson of the old Major. He isn't rich and he isn't poor. He is a partner in a big and recognized investment concern."

Miss Sabrina Marston sighed and stared down the valley.

But Elsa and Adelbert were married. Aunty was there and she gave them the famous old Marston silver plate. They went abroad for a few months and then settled down in their city home.

Aunty visited them occasionally. Now and then Elsa and Dell went up to aunty's place in Laxon Park. Everything seemed to be quite serene.

Elsa called her aunt's attention to their happiness.

Visited by Aunt

"You never can tell—it will wear off—men just pretend. He may be in love with his stenographer or with some show girl—and you'd never know."

In the Fall of their third year of married life Aunt Sabrina came down for her season's shopping and for a few weeks with Elsa and her husband.

She hadn't been there more than a week when she came in from shopping around five in the afternoon. Elsa hadn't returned from one of her bridge clubs. Aunt Sabrina was checking off the parcels that the chauffeur brought in when she heard Dell's voice from the library. He was using the telephone.

"All right," he was saying, "the seventeenth—no, only be sure that Ruby is there—that's right, Ruby's mine for the whole week."

Aunt Sabrina tip-toed out of the living room and up to her room. She was gloating. After all she had said and after all of her warnings about men, and about getting married, it had irked her terribly to see Elsa and Dell so happy, but now it had turned out just as she said. Man was a polygamous beast, at best, and she always knew it! Now she would make Elsa see it!

At dinner that night Dell brought up the subject of going away.

"I'm planning to run up to the Thornton Lodge on the seventeenth, Elsa," he said.

"You'll enjoy it Dell it's good for you to get out," Elsa told him.

"I had a great time last year, remember?"

Elsa remembered.

He turned to Aunt Sabrina.

"It's a hunting lodge. We put in a couple weeks there, or always a week. I may be able to stay the whole two weeks. Last season I got a deer," he explained.

"How do you spell it—dear?" she asked coldly.

"Elsa won't mind. She has you here with her."

"I can manage. I'm never lonesome. It seems to me that you ought to take Elsa along with you. Women need outings, too."

"Not up there—it's strictly stag, no women allowed. Even the cook is a French Canuck."

"Indeed," Auntie said frigidly.

Aunt Sabrina decided not to tell Elsa until after he had gone, or else she might give it away. She wanted to have Elsa with her and catch him red-handed, whatever that was.

She became decidedly snoopy but she got very little more information until the day before Dell was to start. She heard him tell Peters, the butler, to get Highmount, long distance. Elsa had told her that this hunting lodge was up beyond Highmount. Aunt Sabrina picked up a book and sat where she could listen. When the long distance was hooked up her ears fairly quivered.

Much of the talk was about meeting him at the station. There was more talk about provisions, and some of the "provisions" were to be wet and illegal.

Then she heard him say—"Have Ruby there to meet me—I'm bringing her a swell chain."

So, Sabrina mused, this Ruby woman was going to meet him and he was buying jewelry for her and there was going to be liquor! Just as she always knew!

Start for Lodge

After Dell had gone Aunt Sabrina told Elsa to brace herself and be brave for she had uncovered Dell's perfidy. There was another woman.

"Probably a dozen other women, but I know all about this one. He probably hires a guide to shoot a deer for him and he and this woman snuggle up in the camp!"

"I won't believe it," Elsa said, but she was just a little frightened. Her aunt wouldn't deliberately lie.

So Elsa went up to this hunting lodge with her aunt. They were driven in the 12 miles from the station over a terrible road.

"You wait here," Sabrina told the driver. She made Elsa sneak up to the lodge with her. It was warm, despite the early snow, and the door was lightly ajar.

"Now, Ruby—be a good girl?"

"His voice!" hissed Sabrina. "We've got him!"

Sabrina pushed open the door.

Dell was holding a handsome hound between his knees, extracting porcupine quills from her nose. The hound's name was "Ruby." A brand new leading chain was hanging over a chair.

County to Save Money

Francis S. Guthrie Has Rendered the Taxpayers a Service. Brief Comment on Local News.

Thanks to the public spirit of Francis S. Guthrie, the taxpayers of Allegheny County stand to save $100,000 or more in the purchase of voting machines. The prices at which the devices are offered the county are considerably lower than the bids which were previously made and which resulted in a contract that was declared null and void by the Supreme Court. Mr. Guthrie's action in contesting the contract brought him considerable criticism. The critics owe him an apology in view of the happy outcome of the suit. He was actuated by an unselfish motive, and the citizens are profiting by his action.

The industries have responded generously to the appeal for funds for the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. But individuals have not contributed as liberally as had been expected. The campaign has therefore failed to produce the $450,000 that was desired. During the few days remaining, in which the drive is to be continued, it is to be hoped that persons of means will assist the Federation to reach the desired goal.

The cold-blooded murder of a refreshment stand proprietor near McKeesport by bandits yesterday is but one of many homicides that have been committed this week—the week of the execution of Glenn Dague and Irene Shrader. It would almost seem as if the imposition of the death penalty, instead of deterring, had incited criminals to commit capital crimes. Can it be that they lose whatever respect they may have had for the sacredness of human life when they see the State itself deliberately destroy it?

The letter of the League of Women Voters, de- manding an open investigation by Council of city food purchase contracts, made no mention of Controller James P. Kerr. Controller Kerr no doubt could throw a good deal of light on the matter if he cared to take the taxpayers, his employers, into his confidence. It is not to be forgotten that Henry Oliver Evans, as controller, was far from complacent over the situation concerning which Dr. Kerr has been so silent. Evans protested publicly against it.

It will be a surprise to most of the citizens that 307 of the state's 400 highway patrolmen are employed, not in patrolling the highways but in collecting gasoline taxes and investigating the thousands of bad checks tendered the highway department by motorists. Fred A. Fichtel, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, is right in asserting that the force of patrolmen assigned to the curbing of reckless driving is inadequate. Let some other means be found of collecting the taxes and the bad checks. Put the patrolmen to work patrolling.

Dr. W. J. Holland remarked in a speech here some years ago that pollution of the local streams had resulted in the extermination of the river mussels once so abundant. At the time of Dr. Holland's speech few in his audience, perhaps, thought of the destruction of the mussels as a serious economic loss. The Department of Commerce now states, however, that the pearl button industry which is dependent on the river mussel fisheries, is threatened by the growing scarcity of the bivalves. Pollution is destroying them not only in the Ohio but in the Mississippi and other streams. About $6,000,000 worth of buttons a year are produced from the shells. That is an industry worth saving.

Stung by Senator Coyne's question if the opposi- tion of 59 out of about 1,600 attorneys in the county is sufficient to warrant the assertion that the Allegheny County Bar Association is against the creation of two new judgeships, a committee of the association is polling the entire membership on the proposal. It might help the lawyers in reaching a decision to consider the situation that prevailed here Wednesday, when the courts were so short of judges that 12 trials had to be postponed.

Employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company are to be congratulated on their wisdom and generosity in voting for a six-day week. It means that 300 men who were laid off several months ago will be restored to the payroll. The motormen and conductors were given their choice last year between a six-day week and dismissal of 300 of their number. Desirous of continuing to receive seven days wages, they voted to continue the seven-day week. They were sensible in reversing their position, not only because they thus provide jobs for the men who were discharged, but because every worker should have a weekly day off.

Taking of testimony by telephone is authorized, under certain circumstances, by a bill now pending in the Legislature. The testimony must be heard by the jury through a loud speaker and the witness is required to read a transcript of his testimony later and swear that it is accurate. Conservative lawyers, no doubt, will be shocked by the proposal. But it is to be borne in mind that in some quarters the use of the telephone for professional purposes was considered "unethical" until a comparatively recent period. In England, up until a few years ago, there were many banks which would not permit telephones to be installed.

The Wilmerding Y. M. C. A., the borough board of education and the Westinghouse Airbrake Company are deserving of commendation for the plan they have jointly worked out, under which unemployed persons there are to be offered an opportunity to increase their education without expense. A free school will be opened next week, in which trades as well as academic subjects will be taught. The Pittsburgh Plan soon will provide jobs for all workers, it is believed; but in the meanwhile the unemployed can make good use of their leisure by improving their minds or learning something that will help them to earn more money when they go back to work.

Forty tons of casing have been rushed from Pitts- burgh to a new gas well in Tioga County, the largest east of the Mississippi, from which 90,000,000 cubic feet of gas, valued at more than $50,000, is going to waste every 24 hours. If history repeats itself the public will soon be offered shares in companies organized to exploit the new field. It may be well to remember that the McKeesport gas boom, started by a similar gusher, soon petered out, and that far more money was put into the worthless stock of companies organized to drill wells than was taken out of the wells in the form of gas.

Judge George V. Moore, of Common Pleas Court, has made an excellent suggestion in advocating an amendment in the election law to require the signature of each voter opposite his name on the registration lists made up for use of election boards. An autograph is one of the best mediums for identification that can be found. The banks accept handwriting as authority for handing out large sums of money and rarely make a mistake in identification. The plan of Judge Moore would undoubtedly prevent a good deal of election cheating.

Stock Swindlers

With Us Again.

CHILDREN ARE WISER THAN SOME GROWN-UPS

With business improving and legitimate stocks rising, the fake stock seller is again back in the field from which he retreated some months ago.

Quick profits and a chance to recoup losses incurred in the stock market last year are the bait that the fakers offer. As James C. Auchincloss, president of the Better Business Bureau of New York, says:

"The illegitimate operators have increased their efforts in recent weeks after a long period of more or less idleness. They are again purporting to offer alluring propositions with the appeal that people through them can recover losses and restore their capital to former size. Some of these schemes have held out the promise of quick profits in listed stocks through pool participation.

"The law enforcement officers, acting in co-operation with the Better Business Bureau of New York, have been on the alert and have succeeded in nipping several such operations in the bud. Such vigilance has checked losses to investors and served as a deterrent to those who are hatching new schemes."

In New York last year hundreds of stock swindlers were driven out of the city and state, and hundreds of thousands of dollars were recovered for victims. But public memory is short, the lure of sudden wealth is strong, and the stock swindlers are drifting back in search of a new crop of suckers.

Be on your guard against them.

No matter how attractive a proposition is, the only safe rule is to investigate, investigate and keep on investigating until you KNOW that you are putting your money into something sound.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Why Men Don't Get Wrinkles

When woman started out to help herself to man's rights and privileges, she made the mistake of adopting all his follies and foibles and overlooking most of his really enviable traits.

One reason why the average man keeps his youth and pep so much longer than a woman does is that a woman always insists on doing all his worrying for him. Man may have been "made to mourn"—but woman always beats him to it.

A man makes a game of his work—a woman can't even enjoy a game unless she makes work of it.

A man goes to his club for relaxation and pleasure; a woman goes to her club as a social duty or a civic obligation. A man forms friendships at his club; a woman forms factions and starts fights for supremacy.

That's the real secret of man's protracted youth and of most of woman's worry wrinkles and premature gray hairs.

She can't enjoy a novel unless she knows "how it's going to turn out," or a love-affair unless she knows just where it's leading. She can't enjoy a play unless it has a motive or a purpose or a "weep" in it; and she can't be entirely contented with a husband unless he gives her something to worry about.

Until woman learns to look upon life, not as a dispensation or a heavy responsibility, but as a Great Adventure and a beautiful Game of Chance, she will never delight in it as a man does.

Whether he's playing at golf, high finance, politics, art or love-making, a man always plays just for the sheer joy of PLAYING. If things go wrong, it merely increases his eagerness and inspires him to make a more skilful stroke.

But a woman always plays to WIN. And, if things go wrong, it wrings her heart and shatters her nerves.

It's the chance, the gamble, the surprise that relieve a man's life from its deadly monotony and make it an adventure instead of a duty.

That's why most men keep their looks and their figures so much longer than most women. For youth is the spirit of adventure, of hope—that thrilling feeling that something delightful and wonderful may turn the trick for you at any moment. Eternal youth is undying zest in the Great Gamble called Life!

* * *

HOW SCIENCE TUTORS MANKIND

By Archibald Henderson

The futurists of today, the philosophers who are constantly charting the graph of racial development, are raising vital questions regarding the relation between science and progress. It will scarcely be contended by anyone that there is not a connection, indeed a vital and intimate connection, between science and racial advance. The public of today is displaying as much interest in the great scientist as in the great liberator or soldier or statesman. The radio enables the scientist to address directly a world audience, and to discuss the latest and most spectacular discoveries from a large and philosophic standpoint.

Science, whether as practised in the study or in the laboratory, has a pronounced influence on the material development of civilization. Edison, an experimental investigator, may hit upon laws of natural phenomena which enable him to perfect inventions affecting many millions of people and revolutionizing the mode of living of an entire generation. Clerk-Maxwell in the quiet of his study may develop physical principles in the shape of mathematical formulas which are later translated into practical inventions by Hertz, Branly and Marconi.

There is, however, even a limit to the scope of material invention. All inventions are merely natural laws translated into would-be beneficial action. There is a limit to the forces of nature, and to the number of laws they obey. In consequence there is a limit to the possibilities of material invention. Progress, judged from purely material considerations, cannot go on indefinitely. It is reasonable to suppose that, after the passage of some some very great length of time, material progress, except in minor details, will virtually have completed itself.

We must look then in other directions for some of the other influences exerted upon humanity by science. Certain it is that science gives beneficial employment and directive impulse to human intelligence. Moreover, science as we know it today serves as a great stimulant to the imaginative faculties of mankind. Great new ideas, such as those put forward by Einstein, Planck, Bohr, Millikan, Schroedinger, for example, open up new vistas of thought and suggest countless new avenues for man's future investigation.

An important influence upon the development of the mass consciousness of the race is found in the great new group of studies, known as the social sciences. People, judged collectively, have developed a sense of hygiene; they have become more charitable in their instincts and more humane in their actions. Certainly the race as a whole has improved in moral outlook.

Science is an outlet for the higher play instinct of man. Science and art run parallel in this respect. The painter, the sculptor, the architect, the inventor, the pure scientist—each is releasing vital creative instincts in the interest of a more intelligent philosophy, a better world, a higher and more beautiful way of life.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—A lovely little four-year-old girl has been spending the day at our house. She arrived early and when I sat down for breakfast climbed upon a chair opposite and with all the precocity of her years began to pop questions.

She led off with: "What is glass?" I took a few extra bites, cleared my throat and replied: "Why glass is—is—a, you know, sort of slick stuff," and then with a sudden brightness and picking up a water glass, "just like you see in this tumbler."

"But what is it made of?" she persisted. Taking a large swallow of coffee to spar for time, I fumbled: "In making glass you take—But the way for you to remember is for me to read it to you out of the Dictionary." And I did, which, if I do say, was trigger thinking.

After getting the glass question all cleared up, she lapsed into a brown study while I scanned the headlines. Then without warning she popped this one: "How do you make wubber?" I corrected her with: "Rubber. Not wubber. You mean rubber like in a rubber ball?"

"That's it!" she cried, clapping her hands. "How do you make it?" So I parried: "Of course, you know rubber is different from glass. Entirely different. You can bounce rubber but you can't bounce glass. No sir. Let's play a new game I just thought up."

"But I don't wanna play games. I want to know how to make wubber!" A telephone call offered a few moments of grace and if whoever it was thinks I talked a trifle nuttier than usual, and reads this, they will understand I was just stalling for time.

Returning I inquired enthusiastically: "Want to see an alligator?" And I crossed my eyes, bared my teeth, opened and closed my mouth slowly and rumbled a deep "Woo-oo!" She let go an ankle-deep shriek. My wife ran in and snapped: "Can't you play with children without scaring them silly?"

So I slunk into my cubbyhole feeling much the dud as a child entertainer. In about a half-hour there was a timid rap on the door. She was in again—seeking, I presume, more inside information from The Big Rubber Man from The Congo. But she stood off a trifle timidly, eyeing me quizzically as though any moment I might go alligator again. Finally: "I'll bring in my blocks!" With just a touch of sarcasm I replied: "Fine! I haven't a thing to do but play with blocks." So away she scampered.

Well, sir, I had no idea blocks were so amusing. They were in all colors and shapes with designs to copy. One of Morro Castle was a lulu. Any time I got stuck in my building progress she would reach out quickly and hand me the right piece. Which was polite, but so long as I started it I don't see why she couldn't let me finish all by myself. After completing Morro Castle I was half way through Eiffel Tower when she evidently became bored with it all and wandered off.

* * *

There I was stretched on the floor with my pile of blocks when who should come ambling in but Gene Crawley. It's none of his business if I play with blocks, but somehow I felt sheepish and sort of half got up. Taking it all in, he observed with entirely too much cynicism: "It doesn't surprise me. I knew it was only a question of time until you would either be cutting out paper dolls or playing with blocks." Not satisfied with that, he had to hang around just when I was ready to put the final span on the tower. There was a certain effect I was dying to get.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Is life worth living?

You've asked that often—haven't you? And, as the years go on and disillusion and discouragement press more heavily upon you, you ask it with increasing bitterness. More than once you've been tempted to lay down an existence which seems so futile, so full of pain.

If only you knew that it were all worth while—

If you could see some reason for the injustice and cruelty, some purpose in the toil and heart break—

But no answer comes. Man cannot tell you, and God . . . is there a God? Or is He just another tragic dream? A make-believe father we've conjured up to hold to in our awful loneliness?

Yes—I know those questions. I've asked them, too. And railed against the dumb skies that would not answer me. But lately I have not railed so much. Lately, I have begun to suspect that I have had the answer all the while—in myself.

If life worth living? I do not know about life. I do not even pretend to understand its muddled mystery. But this I do know—I know that I, myself, am worth living. Whatever life may lack, I know that there are things in myself which make the struggle worth while.

Is life ugly? Well, I'm ugly, too. In several ways, I'm the ugliest thing I know. And yet—there's beauty in me!

Is life cruel? I'm also cruel. And yet—how is it that I'm also kind?

Life lies to me. I lie to life. But there is honor in me as surely as there are bones and flesh.

Life is impure—I sometimes wallow—and yet I worship purity.

Life's filled with cowardice. How often have I been traitor and deserter! Yet, strangely, I am brave!

Life's black with doubt. I'm poisoned by that doubt. But deep within my darkness, faith burns like a candle through the blackest night.

Life's jumbled and I am part of that jumble. Yet clear and straight and true, within me, runs a dream of order.

Beauty, kindness, honor, purity, courage, faith, order—all these tall and shining things abide in me. And abide in you. I do not know who you are or what you have done. You may be sitting on a throne or tumbling at bars—it does not matter. These great things are a part of you, are part of me, are part of everyone. I cannot understand that. I cannot see how we, the higher ape, should house such gleams of fire in the midst of our common clay. But we do! And because we do—

It's all worth while!

Those gleams, within ourselves, make it worth while.

God may be beyond our understanding—

Life may seem a hopeless jumble—

Men may fail us—

Pain may cripple us and death may crush us—

And this little earthly chance may be all we have

And yet, there is enough beauty and nobility within ourselves to make the game worth the price—

Whatever happens, or fails to happen—you, yourself, are worth all that living costs.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Thinking Things Out

Just thinking things out, I have come to see
How filled with gladness a day can be.
The dawn is ever a lovely thing,
With sunlight's rose on the thrush's wing;
And high noon comes with its tide of gold
While palpitant petals of life unfold.
Then tranquil eve and the stars again
As the peace of home sings its sweet refrain.

Just thinking things out, I have learned at last
How the springs of love make an ocean vast.
Till life like an island is ringed around
With the boundless waters of joy profound.
There is love of labor that each day sends,
The love of children and home and friends.
And all these loves, like a lifting tide,
Bear bliss and beauty on every side.
Just thinking things out, it has come to me
How brimmed with gladness a life can be.

Isn't It So?

If money talks, gossip must be "cash and carry."

Running often saves a pedestrian from getting run down.

The men who search for beauty only with their eyes see only ugliness.

Just because a man profits by his own mistakes is no reason why he should keep on making more.

By studying the past, we can get a pretty accurate idea of the future.

Interest in business is still keen, however, if it's the other fellow's business.

A free country is one where everybody has a right to knock the few who boss it.

A woman feels that marriage is indeed a failure when she is divorced without alimony.
